WILDS SEARCHED FOR MISSING PLANE PASSENGERS

Hearty Reception Tendered Churchill By Great Audience

Canadian Club Luncheon Warmly Welcomes Former British Chancellor at Luncheon Gathering at Empress Hotel; Nearly Eight Hundred Leaders of Community Cheer Him For Several Minutes.

Right Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill, ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer of Great Britain, was tendered a prolonged ovation this afternoon at the Empress Hotel ballroom, when he arose to address nearly 800 members of the Victoria Men's Canadian Club and the National Council of Education. W. H. M. Haldane, vice-president of the Canadian Club, occupied the chair, the guest of honor being to his left and Hon. R. B. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor, to his right.

The audience included most of the leaders of business, political and civic activities on Vancouver Island. Those at the head table were: W. H. M. Haldane, chairman; Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, His Honor Lieut.-Governor Bruce, Very Rev. Dean Quinton, Lord Cromer, Lady Cromer, Major John Churchill, Mr. Justice Martin, Hon. R. H. Pooley, Miss Mackenzie, G. A. Bucklin, United States Consul, Mayor H. Anson, Rt. Rev. Bishop Schofield, T. D. Pattullo, Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald, Randolph Churchill, John Churchill, Mrs. H. P. Hodges, Mrs. Hallet, Hon. W. C. Shelly, Mr. Justice McPhillips, Miss Agnew, Hon. S. L. Howe, Hon. William Atkinson, Judge Lampman, C. W. Rowley, Mrs. Curtis Sampson, Mrs. Hebdon Gillespie, Hon. P. P. Burden, B. C. Nicholas, Mrs. Hugo Heaven, Hon. W. McKenzie, Capt. Cro-mack, Mrs. John Nairn, John Cochrane, Major Cuthbert Holmes, Kenneth Ferguson.

The general attendance included city dignitaries, reveries and councillors of nearby municipalities.

As the guest of honor entered in company with Lieutenant-Governor Bruce and Mr. Haldane, the National Anthem was played and the gathering sang "Rule Britannia" and "O Canada."

Mr. Haldane was extremely brief in his remarks when introducing Mr. Churchill. He remarked that the occasion was notable in the history of the Victoria Canadian Club and the National Council of Education, the members being present to welcome one of the outstanding men of the Empire. He wished to express to Mr. Churchill the appreciation of his presence which animated all those present, who accepted his visit to Canada as recognition of the growing importance of Canada in the Empire and the world.

"I would also express to our guest our gratitude for his great services to the Empire. Ladies and Gentlemen, the Right Honorable Winston Churchill."

"Where better could I look for the climax of such a brilliant tour as I have had in Victoria, where everything reminds me of the small island from which I started out," said Mr. Churchill at the outset. His only regret was that his old and valued friend, the late Sir Richard McBride, was not here to greet him. He recalled some of his associations with the former Premier of the province.

Foreign affairs must be of great interest to Victorians, with Asia looming across the ocean and the United States to the south, he said.

From telegrams he received while in Canada, he gathered there was a tendency to misrepresent the foreign policy of Britain in Europe during the war. It was not one of subservience to France, but one for the peace of Europe.

GOLDEN FOREST RUNS AGROUND AGAIN IN FOG

Ill-luck Continues to Dog Big Freighter Coming Here
For Survey

Dogged by ill-luck ever since she left San Francisco for the Orient early in July, the American freighter Golden Forest again came to grief yesterday afternoon, this time running aground in Shelikof Straits during a dense fog, according to meagre information received here this morning. The steamer Salvage King of Victoria, which was acting as convoy, after successfully floating the freighter from the beach at Akutan Harbor last week, is standing by, and it is thought that the big freighter will be floated on the next high tide. Both ships are still enveloped in a dense blanket of fog.

The freighter's first casualty was when one of her officers became seriously ill with blood poisoning about ten days out from San Francisco. The captain changed his course and proceeded towards the Aleutian Islands, where the doctor aboard a United States coastguard cutter was to render first-aid. During a heavy fog, however, the ship grounded on one of the islands of the Aleutian group. She floated herself within twenty-four hours and started for Dutch Harbor. She took water so fast, however, that the captain had to beach her at Akutan Harbor, where she remained until the Salvage King reached her. The Salvage King worked on the beach and freighter for more than a month, and left with her last Friday en route to Esquimalt.

MAN FACING BIG CHARGES DIES

Toronto, Sept. 5.—W. N. McDonald, secretary and general manager of the Manufacturers' Trust Co. Corporation, who was at liberty on bail of $100,000 awaiting trial on criminal charges involving the failure of the company, died suddenly just after last midnight at his home here.

Mr. McDonald was charged with theft and false pretences involving $500,000. Yesterday he visited a local lakeside resort and complained of feeling ill on his return in the evening.

CATHOLICS HAVE PLANS FOR NEW CHURCH IN ESQUIMALT

Handsome Edifice Here Would Be National Memorial For Catholic Soldiers Who Fell In The Great War and Would Be Built By Contributions From Whole of Dominion.

A site has been selected in the centre of the parish, tentative plans have been considered and architectural designs studied for an imposing Roman Catholic church in Esquimalt, which it is hoped will rise as a national memorial to members of the church who made the supreme sacrifice in the Great War.

Rev. Father A. B. Wood stated today that although the proposal was in its early stages, it had already received encouraging support and had the approval of the Rev. Bishop O'Donnell, before he left Victoria for Halifax. Other leaders of the church have looked very favorably on the idea, but plans now are being held more or less in abeyance until the arrival of a new bishop of the diocese.

The plans call for a handsome new church in Spanish style to take the place of the old St. Joseph's Church in Esquimalt, erected in the early days of the city for the use of the navy, and St. Mary's Church in Victoria West. Funds would be raised by a campaign throughout Canada conducted by the Knights of Columbus councils and the church would contain a memorial room bearing the names of all the Roman Catholic soldiers of Canada who lost their lives in the Great War.

It is anticipated that the campaign for funds will be conducted as soon as the new bishop arrives in Victoria and gives approval of the plan. Besides supplying a much-needed need in Esquimalt, the new church would be of national importance as the only memorial of its kind in the Dominion of Canada. Local Roman Catholics have shown keen interest and an enthusiastic desire to go ahead with the project as soon as possible.

Russians Prepare For Pacific Flight

Bound from Moscow for New York with four airmen, the Russian aeroplane "Land of the Soviets," which is expected to pass within sight of Victoria, or at least not many miles away from the city, today is at Khabarovsk, Siberia. There pontons will be substituted for the wheels and the fliers expect to hop within a week to Petropavlovsk, on the Kamchatka Peninsula, their last stop in Asia before starting for the Aleutian Islands.

The course of the plane is to be along the British Columbia coast to Seattle and on to San Francisco and New York.

The plane arrived Tuesday at Khabarovsk.

BEDOUIN GROUPS NEARING BORDER OF PALESTINE

Large Bodies of Arab Tribesmen Reported Moving Against Jews

London, Sept. 5.—The situation in Palestine continues grave in comparison, according to advices received by the Exchange Telegraph Agency at Cairo. Aeroplanes killed five and wounded twenty at Nablus. Large bodies of Arab tribesmen are reported approaching Palestine.

At Haifa, Jewish shops are still closed. The situation is calm, however, and people are resuming work. Curfew regulations are maintained and troops patrol the streets nightly.

MAKERS OF WAR SCOURGED BY PREMIER BRIAND

French Leader, Addressing League Assembly, Pays Tribute to Its Work

Geneva, Sept. 5.—Premier Aristide Briand of France, whose oratorical triumphs have won him the reputation of the most brilliant orator of Europe, received the biggest acclamation of his long career at today's session of the Tenth Assembly of the League of Nations when he made a stirring tribute to the decade of work by the League and scoured war-makers and all those who secretly foster the spirit of war in the coming generations.

When in his memorable address he sent forth an appeal to the women of the world to protect their children from false ideas of strife and from those doctrines calculated to inoculate prejudice and hatred among peoples, the great audience which packed the Assembly hall burst into wild and prolonged cheers.

EARLY VOTE IN SASKATCHEWAN HOUSE PLANNED

Decision Between Liberals and Co-operatives May Come To-night

Debate Resumed This Afternoon By Attorney-General
T. C. Davis

Regina, Sept. 5 (By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—Galleries were packed and crowds stood at the doorways to the balconies when the new Legislature of Saskatchewan reconvened this afternoon for the second sitting of its first session intense excitement prevailed.

Premier James G. Gardiner and Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, heading the Co-operative group, were applauded by their followers as they entered a few minutes before opening Supporters in the galleries joined in the applause.

Debate was started by Hon. T. C. Davis, Attorney-General, on the amendment of want of confidence in the Government, moved by the opposition yesterday.

Regina, Sept. 5 (By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—Political battle lines are being drawn closer for renewal in the new Saskatchewan Legislature this afternoon of the combat for supremacy. Division on the amendment of non-confidence in the Gardiner Government moved yesterday by Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, heading the Co-operative forces, may possibly come to-night.

The time for the vital test depends very largely on the number of speakers who will address the House from the Liberal side.

JUDGE'S RULING UPHOLDS VIEW OF MAGISTRATE

New Westminster Chinese
Ordered to Put Up $100
Security For Costs

Matter Arising Out of Produce
Marketing Act Conviction
Is Argued

Vancouver, Sept. 5.—Following an order of Mr. Justice Fisher requiring Wong Yock, who is attacking a conviction under the B.C. Produce Marketing Act in certiorari proceedings, to provide $100 security for costs, H. K. Bray, counsel for the Chinese, was granted an adjournment until September 9 of an application to commit Magistrate Harry G. Johnston of New Westminster to jail for alleged contempt of court.

The application of H. B. Robertson, K.C., counsel for the Mainland Potato Committee, to quash the certiorari proceedings on the ground of Wong Yock's neglect to enter into the recognizance, was refused by the judge, who, however, enlarged the time for the return of the writ of certiorari to the contempt of court application, although Mr. Robertson, supported by Magistrate Johnston, who was present in court, pressed for immediate disposal of the contempt of court application.

Wong Yock's counsel explained that in the face of the judge's order it would be futile to continue the application until either the judgment was reversed on appeal or the security was put up.

TRANSCRIPT DESIRED
Mr. Justice Fisher expressed hope the recognizance would be entered into and that Magistrate Johnston would provide a transcript of the evidence. Mr. Johnston's omission to provide this previously at a cost of $40 out of his own pocket was the basis of the contempt proceedings.

The case will be heard again September 9.

NEW YORK STOCKS TAKE NOSE DIVE

New York, Sept. 5.—Prices went into a dizzy nose dive on the New York Stock Exchange in the last hour of trading today, after sharp upswing in a wide assortment of leading issues earlier in the session. Such a flood of selling came into the market that the ticker was half an hour late at the close. United States Steel common tumbled 38 a share and such issues as Radio and New York Central 35 and more.

Amid applause the British Labor leader said: "This spirit of peace will support the hands of President Hoover and myself and enable me to settle this question of statesmen."

He added his conviction that no consideration of national interests would dominate them or cause them to risk failure.

U.S. Army and Navy Plan Search.

NAMED SECRETARY OF RED CROSS FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA

Los Angeles, Sept. 5.—A reward of $5,000 was offered by the Transcontinental Air Transport Company today "for any man or group of men who find the missing passenger plane City of San Francisco."

Washington, Sept. 5.—The War Department today ordered all available army aeroplanes at the southwestern army air fields to participate in the search for the missing Transcontinental Air Transport plane in Arizona.

The Navy Department also ordered the commander of the battle fleet on the Pacific Coast to make aeroplanes available for the search.

SEARCH FAILS
Gallup, N.M., Sept. 5.—John Herting, chief engineer of the Transcontinental Air Transport Company, returned to Gallup at noon today and reported he had made a thorough search of the country around Zuni for the missing air liner, City of San Francisco and its eight persons with no success.

Los Angeles, Sept. 5.—Renewed intensive search for the Transcontinental Air Transport liner City of San Francisco and the eight persons it carried was under way today by air foot over the rugged timber slopes, volcanic peaks and lava waste lands of the territory south of Gallup, New Mexico, and the rough terrain of western Arizona.

Doubt which had been cast on supposedly authentic reports from Santa Fe Railroad sources, once confirmed by Transcontinental Air Transport officials yesterday, was partly swept away by revelation of C. F. Laisner, Santa Fe telegraph operator at Pecos, N.M., that reports had been received and passed along by him that the big passenger plane had been wrecked in the Black Rock Wash country of New Mexico by a school bus driver of the Zuni Indian Reservation. The occupants, according to Laisner's report yesterday and reiterated today after several denials, apparently were dead.

DENIAL DENIED
Laisner explained to Superintendent Collins of the Transcontinental Air Transport in Gallup this morning that the Santa Fe dispatcher at Winslow, Ariz., said the report had come to him.

ITALIAN SCHNEIDER PLANE IS DAMAGED

Calshot, Eng., Sept. 5.—Bad luck continued today to dog the path of the Italian airmen who are here in an attempt to win the Schneider Cup race Saturday.

Their Machi 52 seaplane, in which Major Bernard set his world speed record, was slightly damaged after a flight yesterday.

Those still trapped and believed dead are: Ed Elizer, twenty-six, Oakland; J. King, Gonzalo Gonzalez and Ynacio Felix.

Rescue crews drove a shaft into the rubble just large enough for two men to work in shifts of five minutes each.

TRAMPS USING OLD CAR TRAVEL ISLAND

Modern Type of Hobo Scorns Footlogging in Happy-go-lucky Life

Tourists at Parksville Are Initiated Into Mysteries of New Order

The broad highway still casts its spell over the great army of the Knights of the Road, who at one time were classed as tramps or hoboes, but changing times and changing customs have caught them in the march of progress. The old time tramp is giving away before the modern automobile hobo.

PROUD OF IT

The statement is made on the assertion of a couple of new type tramps who claimed they were hoboes "and proud of it."

They were happily camped in a clearing outside Parksville. "We hoboed in the good old days when we tramped the continent from one end to the other. It is a great life but it has its drawbacks. We remember the days," said one of them, "when you could walk along and meet a car every once in awhile. They were happy days. But you can't do that any more. These cars are crowding the honest tramp of the good old days out of business. You can't walk the highways or even the byways any more in comfort. These cars crowd you off the road. You have to keep jumping for the ditches. Honest! It looked as if we would have to take up some other profession. You know that's pretty hard."

THEY GOT A CAR

"We talked it over. We decided the only thing we could do to stay on the road was to get a car. We got a car. There it is!"

He waved his hand with a lordly gesture to the battered wreck which he claimed had carried them 30,000 miles. "The national questions were 'How did you get the car? How do you get the gas, oil, and running expenses?' The questions were answered by the garrulous hobo before they were put.

NO EXTRAS

Some old blankets were strapped on the running board. A few blackened pots and pans were scattered around. One door was off. The other was tied with a piece of string. The hood was well ventilated where patches flapped. It had no hub caps and no radiator cap. There was no back seat. Obviously the rust on it had seen many storms but never the shelter of a garage.

"That car was loaded for the junk pile when we persuaded a Seattle garage man to let us have it," the tramp continued. "He wanted five dollars to make a deal but we talked him out of it. Any time we want a spare part we try an automobile dump. Gasoline, they admitted, was their greatest trouble. Frankly they admitted a point of gas could usually be extracted from a hose at a service station after the station was closed. Often the price of a gallon or two was raised by helping some autoist in difficulty. This was the main source of supply.

EXPERT SYMPHONERS

"We are stuck for gas right now," the talkative tramp said. "Can you spare a couple of gallons to carry us along?" The request being complied with, a tube to syphon it was quickly produced and the speed with which the tramp went about his business showed it was an art with which he was thoroughly familiar. It raised the question whether in case of emergencies the formal request for gas was not often waived in favor of a little speedy work at a parked car or a little general refilling work in the early morning hours at some automobile camp.

Incidentally the automobile hoboes mentioned auto camps with scorn. In the summer they were all right for effete tourists. But at this time of the year any old clearing along the highway was good enough. Under the stress of weather they occasionally

FOLLOW THE SUN

In winter they used them more often they confessed. Then they were usually deserted and all they had to do was to take possession. Hard weather, however, was not one of their troubles. "We follow the sun," they said. "We always winter in the south or at any rate where the weather is best."

Both tramps eagerly accepted an invitation to join in on a picnic lunch

"Cariboo Pioneers" In Memoriam

By R. N. CAMPBELL

On August 10, within sight of the historic town of Barkerville, B.C., a cairn was unveiled, dedicated to the memory of the Cariboo's brave pioneers.

The mining town was enfeebled and scenes were re-enacted that brought very vividly to mind the days of old—the days of gold in old Cariboo.

Streets were thronged with merry-makers, vying with each other in doing honor to the memory of the men and women who blazed the trail through a wilderness and discovered the golden treasure that startled the world.

Once more the old town was wide open. Games of chance on every corner. Frantic horses raced through the narrow streets. The dance halls kept the revelry going by night.

It was possibly the largest gathering Barkerville has witnessed in fifty years. Mr. Justice Howay delivered the oration of the day in a stirring and brilliant speech reviewed the events of early days which led up to the great discovery.

Many noted persons were present.

MR. J. F. FITZPATRICK, Herbalist:
Dear Sir:—About eighteen months ago my wife was taken sick with the flu. When she was able to get around the doctors said she had an internal Goutre. She tried different treatments for it, but received no benefit from them.

I then looked for other resources to get her cured. One day I was speaking to a friend and she advised me to send my wife down to see Mr. Fitzpatrick, the Herbalist. I did, and after the first treatment she showed signs of improvement.

I want to say this to anyone who has Goutre—just go and see Mr. Fitzpatrick, and you will receive a cure, the same as my wife has, and he's a very serious Goutre.

Should anyone have doubts of this treatment, I wish they will phone me, and I will introduce them to people that know what my wife was eighteen months ago.

Thanking you, I am, yours gratefully,

TWO SCIENTISTS SAY NEW FORCE IS DISCOVERED

New Zealanders Claim it is Ten Times More Powerful Than Electricity

State They Have Transmitted Certain Elements Into Gold

Wellington, N.Z., Sept. 5.—Alchemists, the immature chemical research by which medieval students in the Old World sought to transmute base metals into gold, have been advanced to a hitherto unattained efficacy by two chemists of the Antipodes.

After fifteen years of exacting and dangerous research work in their laboratory, two Christchurch workers, G. F. Aston and H. W. Aston, claim that by use of an electro-magnetic device they have succeeded in transmitting certain elements into gold.

The results of their researches are reported to be under the closest observation of the New Zealand and British Governments.

A very important feature of their work is said to be the discovery by Aston of a new force, given the name of "Chromadyne" which is claimed to be ten times more powerful than electricity.

Cruiser Strengths Conference Problem

Geneva, Sept. 5.—The three points mentioned Tuesday by Premier Ramsay MacDonald as still outstanding in the British-United States naval conversations, pursued in London by the Premier and Ambassador Davies, are believed to consist of the three most difficult questions of all.

Such was the intimation given to the Associated Press correspondent here yesterday afternoon by reliable sources.

The information further indicated that one of the points still unsettled was the old problem of cruiser strength.

The correspondent was informed Premier MacDonald's fundamental idea in wanting to go to Washington was to establish personal contact with President Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson and other United States officials.

DOUKHOBOR SUICIDE

Borden, Sask., Sept. 5.—Believed to have cut her throat with a pair of scissors, Mrs. J. Streifel was found dead at her farm home near here. She was a member of a Doukhobor colony. The body will be buried in the community cemetery. An inquest is to be held.

C.P.R. HOLSTEINS CARRY PRIZES

Cattle From Strathmore Supply Farm Take Honors

Vancouver, Sept. 5.—An even more sweeping victory than that gained at the Canada Pacific exhibition a few weeks ago was scored to-day at the eighth annual provincial exhibition in New Westminster by the prize-winning herd of Holstein cattle from the Canadian Pacific Railway supply farm at Strathmore, Alberta.

The herd won seven first prizes, three thirds, three fourths, two fifths and two sixths awards.

At the Vancouver show the herd led all others and yesterday's showing at the Royal City was a repetition of the victory.

Strathmore McKinley Fairchild Wayne was again first in the male classes, heading the largest herd in the show, while Belvidere Dekol Ruby, a prize Strathmore cow with an annual milk production of 28,000 pounds, was first in the female classes.

Strathmore Ruby Matchless again carried off junior and reserve grand champion among milk cows. Other first prizes were won by the Strathmore herd in senior yearling cows, junior yearling cows, senior and junior bull calves.

Senior and grand championships fell to the undefeated Strathmore Fairchild McKinley Wayne, a bull which has a perfect record for championships this season over the entire western fair circuit. While Strathmore Fairchild Koba, also from the C.P.R. supply farm, was placed junior champion.

The wins of the Strathmore herd to-day were gained in the face of critical opposition with Holsteins and the most numerous breed in the show, and with the best herds of provincial and Dominion Government farms among the entries.

BRITISH NOTE TO CHINA IS MADE PUBLIC

London, Sept. 5.—Great Britain's policy toward extra-territoriality in China was made known officially yesterday with the publication by the Foreign Office of the diplomatic note delivered in Nanking August 12, in which it was stated the time was not ripe for the Chinese Government to assume full control of foreigners in the country.

The note, which was similar to those sent to China by the United States and other powers, declined to agree to China's request for abolition of the system of extra-territoriality, but expressed willingness to examine in collaboration with the Chinese Government the whole problem with a view of ascertaining what further modification in the system would be possible.

The note pointed out that fundamental differences between the Chinese and western legal principles were originally responsible for the system which was established. While noting with appreciation the progress China had made in the assimilation of western principles, it was stated that before reforms in the Chinese legal system could become a reality, the courts should be free from interference and dictation at the hands of military or political chiefs, but of groups and associations who either set up arbitrary and illegal tribunals of their own or attempt to use the legal courts for furthering political objects.

The note concluded by saying the British Government awaited further proposals from the Nationalist Government as to the manner in which it would be possible to adopt for further examination of the question.

Cleveland-Toronto Plane Prizes Awarded

Toronto, Sept. 5.—Sweeping down over the finish line at 4:45 p.m. yesterday afternoon, D. Hackman of Farmington, L.I., won the 300-mile non-stop air derby from Cleveland, Ohio to Toronto, taking the first prize of $2,000. F. Backus of Lowell, Mass., was second, 1 minute and 12 seconds later, and J. C. Cose of Little Rock, Ark., third, at 4:59:09. The plane left Cleveland shortly after 1:30 p.m.

Infantile Paralysis In East Canada

Quebec, Sept. 5.—Due to the outbreak of infantile paralysis in this district, it was decided by the Protestant board of school commissioners yesterday to postpone the opening of the schools until September 16. Schools in this city customarily open the first week in September. Dr. Alphonse Lessard, director of the Provincial Hygiene Department, announced yesterday that the department was not in a position to supply serum to combat the disease, but in the event of urgent need would endeavor to secure a supply.

Ottawa, Sept. 5.—Infantile paralysis continues to claim victims here. The civil health office it was reported fifty-eight cases of the disease were under treatment yesterday.

Two deaths from the disease occurred in the city.

A score of persons are being treated or paralyzed in towns and villages in the Ottawa district.

Jews of Winnipeg Are Working For Army in Palestine

Winnipeg, Sept. 5.—Protesting against what was described as the "intolerance and criminal negligence" of the British administration in Palestine, a mass meeting of Winnipeg Jewish citizens last night passed a resolution by which they vowed to devote themselves with renewed energy and unlimited sacrifice for the formation of a new army of Chaitim for the immediate and peaceful rebuilding of a Jewish homeland in Palestine.

More than 400 were present at the meeting, which was addressed by prominent Jewish leaders.

The resolution passed last night also demanded that punishment be meted out to responsible Government officials as well as guilty agitators and criminals.

NEW PLAN FOR NAMING JUDGES IS SUGGESTED

W. Nesbitt, President of Canadian Bar Association, Urges Nominations

Quebec, Sept. 5.—An attempt to change the method of making judicial appointments and make them non-political, uniform company laws and standard liquor and traffic acts for the provinces were the main legal changes suggested to the members of the Canadian Bar Association to-day in the presidential address of Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, at the organization's annual meeting here.

Owing to illness, Mr. Nesbitt was unable to be present, so his address was read by his son, Rand Nesbitt of Toronto.

The president expressed his conviction that judges in both the high and county courts were overvalued, and that the profession should exert influence so that fewer appointments would be made, and that the appointments would be taken out of the sphere of politics by having the governing body in the province having the vacancy nominate certain of the profession from among whom the Minister of Justice would make his choice.

In view of the rapidly increasing tourist trade uniformity of liquor and traffic acts was desirable, in the speaker's opinion.

"To the American tourist," said Mr. Nesbitt, "Canada is one distinct country, and not so many different provinces, and he is often disappointed travelling between the provinces. The traffic acts need only cover major problems such as speed limits and leave the local ones, such as licensing, to the province."

QUEBEC LIQUOR LAW
A further tribute to Quebec was paid by Mr. Nesbitt in his discussion of the liquor laws when he said: "I think the law of which visitors are enjoying the advantages during their stay in Quebec is much superior to the laws prevailing in other provinces and in the true interests of temperance."

In mentioning with regret the deaths of his two predecessors in office, Sir James Alkins, Winnipeg, and Chief Justice Martin, Mr. Nesbitt dealt at length with the record of Sir James Alkins as founder of the Canadian Bar Association and of two allied bodies, the Conference of Representatives of Governing Bodies of the Legal Profession in Canada and the Conference of Commissioners on Uniformity of Legislation in Canada.

Quebec, Sept. 5.—Problems of Dominion-wide interest will be discussed here during the next three days by prominent Canadian barristers and jurists attending the fourteenth annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association. Among the outstanding problems to be dealt with are the suggestion of abolition or curtailment of appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London, reorganization of the bench throughout the provinces of Canada, suggested methods for changing the present system of appointing judges in order to take the appointment out of the sphere of politics, and revision of the present rules governing the admission of candidates to the study of law.

An indication of the character of the meeting is afforded by a list of some of the men attending. They include Sir Robert Borden, K.C., former Prime Minister of Canada and one of the outstanding international jurists; Hon. R. B. Bennett, K.C., Federal Conservative leader; Chief Justice Morrison of British Columbia; Hon. Newton W. Rowell, K.C., of Toronto, and Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., former judge of the Supreme Court of Canada and now president of the Canadian Bar Association.

RAILROADS CUT TIME TO COAST

C.N.R. Will Meet C.P.R. in Speeding Up Run to Vancouver

Winnipeg, Sept. 5.—Decreased running times from Montreal to Vancouver over the Canadian National Railway will be considered to match the recently announced Canadian Pacific Railway ten-hour time cut, it was announced here today by Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National line. He departed to-day for Montreal.

Sir Henry admitted the project of a more direct rail route from Winnipeg to Churchill was under advisement by western officials.

In departing, Sir Henry expressed his approval of the ideas of Sir H. J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal in the British Government, as expressed here yesterday. The railway head emphasized that certain kinds of steel, manufactured in Canada and imported from the United States, could as well be bought from Britain.

It has been stated that consideration of such a move will be given by the Canadian National.

U.S. WORLD COURT PLAN APPROVED

Geneva, Sept. 5.—The revised protocol prepared by Elihu Root, United States jurist, for the adoption of the United States to the World Court of International Justice, was unanimously approved yesterday by an international conference of the members of the court.

OUR EXTERNAL TRADE

IN AN ADVERTISEMENT RECENTLY published in the newspapers of this country by the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa we were furnished with an interesting account of the growth of Canada's business in the last few years. From it we learned that a two-billion-dollar turnover of external trade a decade ago now has grown to one of more than three billion dollars; how at the beginning of the present century the Dominion was known only for its exports of good wheat. At that stage Canada was not on the industrial map, and a poor harvest meant that our position among the exporting nations of the world would be relatively unimportant.

All this has been changed in the meantime. This Dominion now occupies the proud position of second largest exporting nation in the world on a per capita basis; yet only sixteen years ago we had to be content with seventh place. Although Canadian exports to-day are by no means all wheat, of course, it is the backbone of the trading strength of this country. From the standpoint of manufactures alone, however, we take second place among the world's producers on a per capita basis, being exceeded only by Great Britain. Since 1922, incidentally, the industrial production of Canada has grown from $2,500,000,000 to $4,000,000,000, a rate of growth which no country in the world has exceeded.

The advertisement to which we have referred also reminds us that the export trade of the country has increased eighty-four per cent. since 1922, that exports to the British Empire have increased fifty-five per cent. in that period, while exports to foreign countries have increased 108 per cent. Ample justification will be found in these figures for the policy which Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, has pursued in extending the service of the Canadian trade commissioners. There are now thirty-two of these officers scattered all over the world, and, as The Manitoba Free Press suggests, "the growth of trade with certain countries shows that these officials are literally worth more than their weight in gold." Trade commissioners, for instance, are established at Shanghai and Hongkong; trade with China has increased from $1,900,000 to $23,687,000 in seven years. There is an office at Kobe, Japan; our exports have increased from $14,831,000 to $42,099,000. Trade with the South American republics has in all cases doubled, and in some instances shows almost staggering growth. Exports to Chile, for example, have grown from only $290,000 in 1922 to $2,403,000. Portugal bought only $87,000 of Canadian goods in 1922; last year that country bought goods valued at $5,735,000.

Hence it will be understood that when Mr. Malcolm calls our trade envoys "Canada's business scouts abroad," he is using a phrase which fits them well.

REFLECTIONS OF THE JAMBOREE

IN SOME OF HIS POST-WAR WRITINGS Sir Philip Gibbs has seemed to be rather too pessimistic about the future of the world. Signs have appeared to him which have caused him to despair of the lessons of the war. But contemporary literature is the richer by his descriptive narrative of the Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of the world recently held in England, and we see in his finely turned phrases a revival of his hopes for better things. He begins this way:

As I walked among the boys from camp to camp, from nation to nation, hearing many different tongues, listening to their laughter and songs, seeing their flags and emblems, I thought back inevitably to fourteen years ago when these boys' fathers were divided from each other by frontiers of hatred in the ditches of death. Now in the same camp, and marching this afternoon in the same legion of youth before the Duke of Connaught and the Chief Scout, came French and Germans, Hungarians and Poles, Belgians and Austrians, the boyhood of the British Empire from many dominions and of many races—Indians, Africans, Arabs, Greeks, Russians, Latvians, Danes, and Dutch, Japanese and Chinese, the boys belonging to the big family of the world's youth. There are two million Boy Scouts in the world to-day and seven hundred thousand Girl Guides.

There was other music in this city of tents. I heard the beating of tom-toms, and came to a camp of British Indians. Some of them were practicing a snake dance, while others were busy at their cooking at camp fires and stew pots.

I spoke to one of the cooks and asked him from what part of India his comrades came. "From all parts," he said in good English. "One of our boys, walked across the Himalayas to join his troop, and had an adventure with a leopard on the way." "Are you all Mohammedans?" I asked. "He shook his head and laughed. "I am a Hindu, my comrade here is a Mohammedan. We forget all castes and differences of religion. We belong to the Boy Scout religion. We are good comrades."

I walked to the German camp under the flag of the new republic. These German boys were very happy with the friendship that has been shown to them by their English comrades and by the English people everywhere as they passed through the countryside on their way from Grimby. "The Boy Scout movement is beyond politics," said one of these German Scouts. "We are loyal to its spirit of peace and goodwill. The German Government has helped us in every way. We believe this is the way of a conciliation. We are glad and proud to be here."

The Japanese were busy in their camp. "It has taken us since May to get here," said one of them. "It is a long journey, but we are glad to meet our comrades from all countries."

Two thousand American boys are living under canvas provided by the American army. One of them spoke with enthusiasm and gravity.

"People in the United States," he said, "do not realize how mighty important this Jamboree is going to be. Why, it is the best thing that has ever happened for world peace. The moving picture merchants are missing the most wonderful show on earth."

What Sir Philip beheld must have completely captured his imagination. But it is the latter part of his article which will suggest to the reader that the distinguished author and lecturer who saw this gathering of the youth of many nations realizes the influence the Boy Scout movement must have upon the progress of the world. Sir Philip concludes with this moving comment:

A strange, significant scene in a quiet old English park, above which airplanes were flying low. Surely it has a message to the whole world. It seemed to me, as I stood there watching, that there was the beginning of a new chapter in history. We older men who remember the past had no place here. It was youth's rendezvous, with new hopes, a new vision of life, a great promise ahead.

I saw the glory and the splendor of the world's boyhood in that English park—all the world in miniature—and tried to peer into the unknown future towards which they go, so keen, so gay, so gallant, so humorous, without fear.

SAVING AND DESTROYING

IT IS SO MUCH EASIER TO DESTROY life than to save it that it seems odd that most of our monuments and memorial wreaths should go to the destroyers rather than to the saviors. That, however, is the way we do things. Some day, perhaps, we shall have a better sense of values.

The latter part of the eighteenth century and the first part of the nineteenth saw about as much wholesale destruction as has ever been crowded into a similar period of history. The men who led in that destruction became famous. Scores of books have been written about great warriors, scores of statues have been erected to them. Every schoolboy knows who they were and what they did.

It happens that there was an Englishman living in those days who managed to save more lives than the efforts of famous military leaders destroyed. He has been dead a century, but he is still saving lives, and he will continue to do so for centuries to come. His name was Edward Jenner. Is that name familiar to you? Probably not; but history books dismiss him with a paragraph. But the name is far more worth knowing than the names of the fighting men of his period.

Jenner, born in 1749, was the son of a country clergyman. He grew up in a day when smallpox was the most dreaded disease known. One out of every four people in Europe and England either died of smallpox or carried its disfiguring scars throughout life. Medical science was utterly helpless before it.

Jenner studied medicine and resolved to devote his life to the problem of smallpox. He had noticed the current belief in his native country district that milkmaids and farmers who had contracted the mild cowpox were immune from smallpox, and he set to work to find out about it.

Many years of study and experiment followed—until, in 1800, he was able to present the results of his researches to the world and get the endorsement of seventy-three prominent physicians. During the years that ensued Jenner himself vaccinated more than 600,000 persons, and vaccination became recognized by medical men everywhere as the great weapon against smallpox.

The battlefields of Europe were bloody during these years. Armies moved and fought almost without ceasing, generals built vast reputations, ships sent their broadsides crashing into enemy vessels, and Napoleon made his name a household word. Thousands upon thousands of men were killed. But Jenner, the quiet son of a country parson, was saving more lives than all of these battles were destroying. Napoleon has a mighty tomb in Paris—and not one man in a hundred can even tell who Jenner was!

Some day, let us hope, we will be better able to recognize the Jenner form of greatness.

OUR INWARD THOUGHTS

The Toronto Mail and Empire

Mr. Churchill will not be "interviewed," but will say all he wants known in public speeches. But speeches sometimes are not the best indication of what a man thinks; which may imply that our thoughts are our own, our words belong to the world.

KEEP HIM ON THE LOOKOUT

The New Outlook

It is very interesting to read that Mr. C. P. Scott, who has recently retired from the editorship of The Manchester Guardian after nearly sixty years of distinguished service, was in the habit of cycling to his office day after day through many years. There is often a sturdiness about an Englishman's way of doing a thing that is refreshing to see, and that helps to account for such records as that of Mr. Scott's. If he had had a Rolls-Royce habit, it is just possible that he might not have been so great an editor for so long a time.

SNOWDEN'S POPULARITY

The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

It seemed to be the prime object of Mr. Baldwin's foreign policy to preserve the friendship of France at any cost in money or its prestige. Mr. Snowden's present attitude is not calculated to increase British popularity in France. He believes that the Young plan is too generous to France and makes Britain the goat. And his view is strengthened by the contrast between the extremely heavy taxation now imposed in Britain and the relatively light burden carried by French taxpayers.

KUM AND RUN-RUNNERS

The Vancouver Sun

If Canada, in brotherly sympathy with the virtuous ambitions of American dyes, wishes to put a crimp in rum-running, she does not need to alter her shipping laws and regulations the slightest bit. All she needs to do is to enforce her immigration laws to the strictest possible extent. The solution of the difficulty is not so much to keep Canadian liquor out of the United States, as to keep United States rum-runners out of Canada. For that we need no new laws, merely to enforce the laws that already exist.

A THOUGHT

In the same day also will I punish all those that leap over the threshold, which fill their masters' house with violence and deceit.—Zephaniah 1:9

We are so accustomed to masquerading ourselves before others that we end by deceiving ourselves.—Bochevnauld.

Loose Ends

London greets Alfonso—and acts like a perfect gentleman—by failing to do him physical violence. Christian student falls down again—causing keen alarm over the morals of the young—and some Americans see too much of Paris.

By H. D. W.

OVER IN London they know how to do things. If you have any doubt about that read one paper's chaste account of the visit of King Alfonso of Spain, to a London restaurant, incognito. Says this charming record: "Although his visit was quite unexpected everyone in the room immediately recognized King Alfonso's lean figure and gay smile. With instinctive good manners all the guests, realizing that it is not etiquette to leave a room before royalty, waited until his departure to follow suit. There was no staring and no whispering. Altogether it made one proud of one's country." Ah, yes, indeed, it would. For, of course, in any other city the guests would have instantly mobbed His Majesty, stolen his hat and gloves as souvenirs and forced him to write his autograph on the napkins. Thank heaven, London has been reading books of etiquette and he doesn't do these things any more. And it does make one so proud of one's country, don't you know? In the same way we might be proud that we do not encourage murder, and boast that we seldom boil our maiden aunts in oil.

AT PRINCETON University recently occurred an event which has given sages pause and started an interesting argument over the religious ideals of the so-called rising generation. To understand the niceties of this matter you know that in the campus of Princeton stands an heroic statue called "The Christian Student," representing in graphic terms the athlete by means of his football attire; the student by books and academic robe slung over his shoulder; the Christian, by a noble, slightly disapproving expression.

NOW, CHRISTIAN Student, it is related, has had to suffer like many other Christians. Sometimes the university has awakened in the morning to find him clutching an empty beer bottle. Occasionally his face is discolored with paint of bright hues. Once or twice he has been found garbed in ladies' garments which, up to a few years ago, were considered confidential.

THESE ATTENTIONS on the part of the students, however, were mere preliminaries. The other night they tied a rope around Christian Student's neck, gave it a mighty tug and without loss of dignity or his moral air, Christian student crashed to the ground.

Next morning he was put in a garage until he could be set up again, and meanwhile began an argument over the religious condition of the student mind.

FROM ALL parts of the land came cries of alarm over this apparent impiety, while others held that the students, on the contrary, were so earnest in their reverence that they could not bear to see religion enshrined in a mere statue, as in an idol. And so the grown-up generation of our time, while storming thus, has overlooked the obvious explanation of this whole business—namely, that the present generation of students are just about like us at their age; and whether we should be proud or sorry that they have not evolved beyond us is a question for individual decision. Unless we are traitors to our mispent youth we should be secretly a little glad. Certainly we haven't any right to be surprised.

IN FRANCE they know better how to protect their works of art and public monuments. The other day five Americans, three men and two women, climbed to the top of the Arc de Triomphe, which was begun by Napoleon and completed by Louis Philippe in 1836, and became so absorbed in the moving panorama of the Champs Elysees and the Bois de Boulogne below them that they failed to hear the keeper's warning and were locked up in this elevated gallery. When the shadows fell they descended only to find the entrance door locked for the night. Through the thick bronze portals their cries and poundings were not heard outside. Hurrying to the summit again, they made frantic signs to those 100 feet below and at length a policeman observed them. He gesticulated helplessly but presently rushed off to the nearest police station. The police also were helpless for only the Ministry of Beaux Arts had authority to open the door. "Through the night the police labored to secure official permission to rescue the foreigners and by the dawn they had secured it. Just as the sun was rising over Paris the five unhappy Americans came down

DOCKHOBORS AND OTHERS

To the Editor:—We are glad to see that the Vancouver Star came out so forcibly on the subject of the dockhobors. The whippings given to these poor, misguided people, under the name of law, are not only unjust, but they are also a disgrace to the law. The dockhobors are a law unto themselves. There are a few crims, ignorant dealings with unforgotten of the province which could well be remedied. Among them are unauthorized beatings and stealthy removals of slight nervous breakdowns to either jail cells here, or in Vancouver to basement cells in Ward 24, sometimes without the necessary signatures and worse than this, sometimes without the knowledge, approval and sanction of relatives. Persuasive instructions to the dockhobors and a sympathetic home and friendly clinic for these others would lend an added charm to this fair province of ours, and also gain the true allegiance of the law.

LADYSMITH SCHOOL FEES

To the Editor:—On the front page of The Victoria Times of August 31, there appeared an item under the heading "Ladysmith High School Fees Schedule—Special to The Times." This gave the impression that the schedule was a new undertaking, which it is not. The dollar fee has been in force for a long time. I myself paid it for my own children in 1922. The fee for householders has also been in force for several years. The fee for residents outside the school district is another old resolution, $20 up to Christmas, $15 in January and again in April.

The fee for students outside the school district has been in force since 1924 of 1925. The only change I see is that taxpayers who are non-residents in the school district will have this fee too. This is a fair, and a good idea, because some people not living in the school district, in order to overcome the fee, purchased a lot at the tax sale in order to become a taxpayer, then let the house to a family, and they should be taxed as such. In some cases the $5 household fee, or $15 for the year, is a good one, because it induces people to become property owners and live in the city. But in many cases the fee is levied on people who are not in the city, and they are exempted if they pay a reasonable school tax in these places. The high

Records of all birth certificates can be looked up wherever they are kept in B.C., others can be forced to show their birth, or state where they were born, so that in some way they can be located in the least expensive way by the Government.

I myself would exempt anyone who paid a reasonable school tax, and I would show certainly lighten the burden of some of the property owners in the Province who pay high school taxes. I would also favor government control of all schools and an equal chance for rich and poor aberrations.

THE DOCKHOBOR CHILDREN AS HOSTAGES

To the Editor:—The explanation given out to the press of the action of the Attorney-General in his punitive expedition against the dockhobor children fills me with wonder and disappointment. That in this year of grace, a body of legislators could lag so far behind modern humanitarian sentiment as to entertain the idea of taking away little children from their mothers with the avowed purpose of inflicting punishment, is very quieting. We no longer treat insane persons as criminals, neither do we excite by punishment or persecution persons who for one reason or another are afflicted with mental aberrations or hysterical excitement. That brutal and stupid age was thought to have expired when small-pox sufferers ceased to be beaten. But even when dancing mania in Europe and convulsions brought about by the eloquence of John Wesley prevailed, the victims were not further tormented by punishment. This idea of separating little ones from their mothers as a legal method of coercion involves a lowering of public opinion. I for one, and I believe a large body of opinion will support me in protesting against this evil thing, and that the afflicted ones may eventually be recognized as such and treated accordingly.

Paramount has made into an all-talking picture, proves that a woman has often the best of the argument in a battle of wits with her husband. Ruth Chatterton, Clive Brook, William Powell and Mary Nolan carry the story in this clever picture which features the Dominion Theatre programme.

The story of "Charming Sinners" has to do with a new treatment for philandering husbands. Ruth Chatterton, as the wife, applies her unique remedy in a smart way that leaves a smile all-around, even with the defeated husbands. Clive Brook has a rare role and he handles it in delightful fashion. For once he steps out of the tragically serious character into a picture which gives free-play to all the interesting whimsicalities of which he is capable.

"BIG BOY" PLAYS
ROLE OF PAL IN THE COLUMBIA FILM

Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, who has registered such a hit as the buddy of George O'Brien in the Warner Bros. super-spectacle, "Noah's Ark," has a principal supporting role in Monte Blue's new picture, "From Headquarters," which is at the Columbia Theatre.

Williams plays one of Monte's buddies in this production. In the cast are Henry B. Walthall, Gladys Brock-well, Ethelene Clair, Eddie Gribbon and Pat Harigan. Howard Bretherton directed.

PLENTY OF COMEDY
IN "THE 'IT' GIRL"
AT THE COLISEUM

Miss Mildred Page heads a clever company in a splendid farce-comedy entitled "The 'It' Girl," at the Coliseum Theatre this week. The play is cleverly written and gives each player plenty of opportunity to show their talent in comic roles. Miss Page is at home in any role whether it be comic or dramatic and this week is a charming comedienne.

J. Barrie Norton is the leading comedian of the cast. Mr. Norton is a clever mimic and with his ridiculous antics and droll expressions has his audience in roars of laughter at many stages. Before coming to Victoria Mr. Norton appeared with stock companies in many Pacific Coast cities.

UNDERWORLD THEME
PLAYHOUSE SCREEN

The plot of "Man, Woman and Wife," a Universal picture with an underworld theme now playing at the Playhouse Theatre, concerns the lives of five persons, two women and three men. They are inextricably tangled in a web of fate and each must depend on the others for his success or failure. Charles A. Legue wrote the screen story and Edward Laemmle directed. In the cast are Norman Kerry, Pauline Starke, Marian Nixon, Kenneth Harlan, Crawford Kent, Byron Douglas and others.

FEATURE PICTURE
AT THE CAPITOL

A torchlight procession on the campus, showing all the color and excitement of a pre-big-game rally by college students for their football team, is graphically shown in "College Love" the Universal feature of collegiate life which opened at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

Since the entire picture is made in full sound and dialogue, this scene, as well as all the other sequences of the film, is particularly realistic. "College Love" is the first full length college picture in full sound to be made and shown.

On the evening before the big game of the season, all the students of Caldwell college build and light a huge bonfire and carry torches, parade around the flaming pyre. Cheers, no less enthusiastic than the men students, sing their college tunes while they frolic and skylark around the fire.

Mexican Papers Are Publishing More News From This Country

Mexico City (By Mail).—A new manifestation of the increased interest in Canada in Mexico is the fact that the leading daily newspapers of this country are publishing more and more Canadian news. Press association and special dispatches from the Dominion are published frequently and given prominent positions on the cable pages of the principal newspapers of Mexico City and the larger cities of the republic. A good deal of news from British Columbia, from Victoria and Vancouver, appears in the Mexican dailies.

Several of these newspapers have English language sections, each containing from one to two pages. In these departments Canadian news is prominently featured. By this means both the Spanish and English speaking residents of Mexico are amply informed as to happenings in all parts of the Dominion.

SPEAKS HERE

London Pastor Addresses
Large Audience in Church of Our Lord

Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, who has been spending the summer on the coast, is a visitor here and will give a two-day series of addresses prior to leaving for his work in London, England, in connection with the British Israel World Federation.

Addressing a large audience last night in the Church of Our Lord, Mr. Goard's subject was "Britain and Her Kindred Nations as the Israel of Prophecy."

Distinguishing the two sections of the kingdoms of Israel and of Judah, he said these were as distinct national entities as were Britain and the United States. When the northern kingdom of Israel went into captivity they disappeared from sacred history, but reappeared under different names in secular history, Sacs, Scythians, Getae, Goths, various branches of the same people, and these people were Israel.

The recognition of the fulfillment of the prophecies in the British company of nations, which the speaker described as the mightiest going concern in the world to-day, demonstrates the veracity of the Bible and establishes the unchanging faithfulness of God to His covenants and promises, the speaker declared. Failure in the past to see this has been the fountainhead of unbelief and the drift from religion which all deplore, he added. The lecturer will speak to-night on "The Second Coming of Christ."

Stomach Out of Order
Until He Tried TANLAC

All pains are bad, but some are worse than others. About the worst are stomach pains. A real cramp in the stomach just about doubles one up. Mr. F. Gauthier of Great Falls, Man., was very sick because of stomach trouble. Ordinary meals brought on terrible cramps. He lost weight; could not sleep; and became very nervous. Tried various medicines but nothing seemed to do him any good. Then, he writes, "I was advised to try Tanlac, and I want to say that Tanlac filled the bill. Indigestion, stomach trouble, nervousness, sleeplessness have all disappeared; and I am eating, sleeping and working as a healthy, vigorous man should." If everything you eat distresses you, if you are pale, weak and nervous let Tanlac help you. It is made from roots, herbs and herbs. Nature's own medicines for the sick and costs less than 2c a dose. Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day—your money back if it does not help you. (Advt.)

NOVEL MANNER SUGGESTED FOR HEATING BOTTLES

Mrs. E. L. A. writes—"When I tell you that I have a boy of eighteen months and a girl of six months you will understand how I enjoy and appreciate your articles. The boy has temper spells and kicks and screams, the same way throughout the night. I have done everything I know of, being careful of his diet and giving him a light meal of cereal and milk at night. He is not jealous of his sister as she sleeps most of the time and demands very little attention. I think it must be nerves or worms. The doctors disagree with me. I have never heard this subject discussed in your column.

"I also want to tell you of a suggestion which might help your readers. I buy rubber caps that fit over the open end of the feeding bottles and then I need not fear that they will spill when I carry them away from home. I have an electric plate by my bed and at night when I want to heat a bottle, I lay it on the plate, turn on the electricity and then keep turning it until it is warmed. In spite of the fact that the bottle is cold when put on, I have never had a broken bottle."

ANSWER

I would really have to know more about the child before having much idea of what might cause these temper spells. You say he isn't jealous but this isn't always easy to determine. He may feel that he gets less attention now baby sister is here than he did

ENGAGEMENT NOT CONFIRMED

Miss Valerie French Refuses to Talk at New York

New York, Sept. 5.—Miss Valerie French, granddaughter of the late British Field Marshal, Earl French of Ypres, married Bradley Martin, it will not be at his bedside in a Denver hospital, but in London in the presence of her relatives and friends.

This was the only definite statement Miss French would make upon her arrival here last night on the liner Homeric. She refused to confirm reports of her engagement to Mr. Martin, son of Bradley Martin, New York financier, who is recovering in a Denver hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

"Cannot my answer wait a few days?" she said. "You see, I shall be seeing Mr. Martin's family and perhaps Mr. Martin himself. Then I may have an announcement."

WILL OF PEOPLE AIDS NEW NAVY REDUCTION PLAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—President Hoover and his advisers to-day began work on the details which remain as the unsettled part of an agreement upon navy disarmament with Great Britain.

Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent private secretary to the British Prime Minister, is staying at the British Embassy and is presumably discussing the details of the agreement with Mr. MacDonald with Sir Esme Howard, Ambassador to the United States.

These are the progress manifestations of the program of disarmament negotiations. It is admitted the important point is:

What are these matters which Secretary of State Henry Stimson calls "details" and which are taken as being the three points mentioned by Mr. MacDonald as not agreed upon as yet.

CRUISE AND YARDSTICK

Well-informed sources enumerate them as:

First—What number of cruisers shall each country have?

Second—What agreement can be reached upon total cruiser tonnage?

Third—How may the yardstick theory be applied to the two navies?

If this catalogue may be broadly interpreted, it means no such agreement has been made as was indicated by Mr. MacDonald's speech at Geneva.

Hopeful observers have seized upon the intimation from a high quarter that a new accord might be made within three weeks.

EARLY VOTE IN SACKTCHUEWAN HOUSE PLANNED

ATTORNEY-GENERAL SPEAKS

Attorney-General T. C. Davis, who was speaking on the amendment at the hour of adjournment last evening, will resume his remarks when the Legislature meets again at 3 this afternoon.

At least three Government speakers besides Premier James G. Gardiner—Hon. J. M. Uhrich, Minister of Public Works; Hon. W. J. Patterson, Provincial Treasurer; Hon. George Spence, Minister of Railways—were said to be forenoon to be ready to take the floor.

Dr. Anderson, leading twenty-four Conservatives, five Progressives and six Independents, will be the chief speaker from the opposition benches unless developments change the situation.

Members of the Government held a conference this morning. Discussion on the number of speakers they would have from their ranks was said to have been the most important question considered.

HOUSE TO DECIDE

Premier Gardiner had no statement to add to his declaration that the Government would abide by the decision of the House on the want of confidence amendment. The Premier maintained his attitude that defeat of the Liberal nominee for the Speakership at the opening proceedings yesterday and the election of a Conservative Speaker was not a decision on the right of the Government to carry on.

Opposition members, as they gathered in groups in the several hotels, expressed gratification over their success in the election of Speaker J. F. Bryan, Conservative, Lunenburg, by a majority of seven—34 to 27. They were hopeful for a short debate. There had been no overnight developments, but the unparalleled situation in the history of Saskatchewan politics continued to be the chief topic of discussion in the provincial capital. Admission to the galleries to-day again was arranged by special tickets only. The Liberal nominee yesterday for the post of Speaker was J. M. Parker, Touchwood constituency.

SPECTATORS HEARD

On the two divisions for the Speakership, the Conservatives, Progressives and Independents lined up solidly against the Government. Throughout proceedings scenes of the wildest excitement prevailed. Even spectators in the galleries joined in applause for their leaders until their enthusiasm was curbed by the new Speaker.

The amendment before the House challenging the right of the administration to function as a Government is brief in text and reads:

"It is expedient that His Honor's Ministers should possess the confidence of a majority in this House, and such CONFIDENCE IS NOT REPOSED IN THE PRESENT MINISTERS OF THE CROWN.

The amendment was presented by Dr. Anderson and accepted by Speaker Bryant following a motion by Premier Gardiner for immediate consideration of the Speech from the Throne.

The late Mr. Irwin operated a big fruit ranch with his son, Joseph, and his daughter, Margaret. He was born in London, Ont., and lived there until twenty years ago, when he settled at Irwin's Landing, and started fruit ranching activities.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTION

Premier Gardiner stated there was a constitutional issue involved. The whole question of parties, the Premier said, should be discussed in the existing circumstances on the floor of the House.

from his wife, who had received it from the school bus driver, Laizer indicated the reports of details by him, reaching Santa Fe and Transcontinental Air Transport sources, may have been due to explanations on his part that he did not have personal knowledge of the authenticity of the report. The plane, which left Albuquerque, N.M., Tuesday morning westbound, carried the following:

PASSENGERS

Mrs. Corina Raymond, Glendale, Calif.

A. B. McGaffey, Albuquerque, N.M.

William H. Beers, New York.

M. N. Campbell, Cincinnati.

Harris Livermore, Boston.

CREW

J. D. Stowe, chief pilot.

A. E. Dietel, co-pilot.

C. F. Canfield, courier.

INDIANS SEARCH

Gallup, N.M., Sept. 5.—Five hundred Indians from the Zuni Reservation were searching the rugged territory southwest of here today for the wreckage of a plane reported to have been forced down in this locality. Several planes were sighted in this vicinity this morning, circling over the terrain and evidently trying to locate the place where the wreckage of a plane was reported seen yesterday.

Leaving the reservation, the five hundred Indians deployed on a wide front, checking as far as possible the district between Gallup and Zuni.

NO-TRACE FOUND

Zuni, N.M., Sept. 5.—After an all-night search a number of Indians from the reservation here returned this morning and reported they had found no trace of the passenger plane reported wrecked near Zuni.

C. H. Kealey, manager of the Zuni Indian Trading Company, said the Indians had searched the territory in which the plane had been reported to have crashed, but had found no wreckage.

The City of San Francisco was an all-metal tri-motor transport, one of the newest planes in the service. It left Albuquerque, N.M., at 10:25 o'clock Tuesday forenoon for Los Angeles.

Pilot J. B. Stowe, one of the veteran pilots of the line, was at the controls when the big monoplane headed into the electrical storm-swept western region.

INQUIRY STARTED

Los Angeles, Sept. 5.—With the fate of the Transcontinental Air Transport's passenger plane City of San Francisco still cloaked in a confusion of reports, the aeronautical branch of the United States Department of Commerce took steps to-day to investigate the disappearance Tuesday of the ship with its eight occupants over the dangerous mountain area near the Arizona-New Mexico line.

Captain Walter Parkin, head of the branch here, left for Albuquerque by airplane to supervise the principal inquiry, while assistant, R. J. Hansen, was en route to Winslow, Arizona, to lead the search for the missing plane.

WEATHER REPORTS

The inspectors planned a check of mechanical reports on the City of San Francisco and weather reports at Albuquerque to determine flying conditions before the plane left that point.

The swiftly changing rumors caused the investigators to decline comment until they should be able to assemble authentic information.

U.S. IS TO SHARE IN THE WORK OF WORLD COURT

Delegates Endorse Formula at Geneva; U.S. Ratification Is Promised

Washington, Sept. 5.—Secretary Stimson said to-day the State Department was satisfied with the Root formula for adherence of the United States to the World Court, which plan now has received the endorsement of the conference of World Court members at Geneva.

Elihu Root, United States jurist, drafted the protocol to overcome the objections of other countries to a Senate reservation to prohibit the court from rendering an advisory opinion on a question in which the United States had or claimed an interest, without the consent of the United States.

The Secretary's announcement was contained in a formal statement, which also asserted the Secretary of State would recommend to the President that the draft protocol be submitted to the Senate on the condition it was ratified by the other states. Mr. Stimson indicated his belief that ratification by the other states would require about one year.

HUNTER KILLS AGED RESIDENT

John Irwin, Eighty-three, Loses Life at Arrow Lake, B.C.

Calgary, Sept. 5.—John Irwin, aged eighty-three years, father of A. H. Irwin of the T. Eaton Company of Canada Limited, was accidentally shot and killed by a hunter at his fruit ranch at Irwin's Landing, Lower Arrow Lake, B.C., yesterday.

The news received this information by long distance telephone from Nelson late last night. On account of time interference it was not possible to get all the particulars.

LAWRENCE OF ARABIA ON DUTY IN ENGLAND

London, Sept. 5.—Rumors that Lawrence of Arabia had arrived in Palestine or India or at another centre of the Moslem world where the author of "Revolutions in the Desert" has so large an influence, were quieted to-day by a dispatch from authoritative British quarters.

The former Colonel T. E. Lawrence, who now calls himself Altracatan, Shaw, was said to still be on duty at a home station of the Royal Air Force.

HEARTY RECEPTION TENDERED CHURCHILL BY GREAT AUDIENCE

Brought Together

Before the reconciliation of France and Germany all other difficulties in Europe fell to the importance, he declared. Through the Treaty of Locarno, the bringing of these two nations into stronger comradeship for the future had been attained.

He had always been anxious that Germany should resume her place in the family of Europe, and that has been achieved. Not that we did that at the expense of the allies with whom we stood side by side during these long years," Mr. Churchill said. "Our policy in Europe has been clear, keen and consistent."

EXPORT TRADE

Despite lack of protection, Britain still exported more to foreign markets than any other great nation.

"We have already repaired the immense inroads on our foreign financial condition made by the war," Mr. Churchill declared, "and we have now larger foreign investments than ever before, and are still the greatest creditors in the world."

CHINESE SITUATION

"I think you will agree the British policy in China has been successful," he declared, pointing out that a very difficult period had been passed through and consolidation was now in sight.

The patient skill with which the British foreign office had dealt with this ever-changing situation had been rewarded. The Chinese, sickened by "false Russian guides" had seen the gulf of Communist annihilation to which they were being urged and had turned to trust the British.

FIRMS NEED PATIENCE

Patience and skill had not alone dealt with this problem, however. Firmness was always necessary in dealing with Oriental people. A force dispatched with celerity from England had been in the nick of time to save Shanghai, showing force was sometimes necessary to maintain the right.

The Chinese situation interested

BRITISH COLUMBIA PARTICULARLY, BECAUSE OF THE TRADE ASPECT, MR. CHURCHILL CONTINUED.

The shores of Asia and America were being drawn closer and closer through trade ties and British Columbia, on the western edge of this great Dominion, had proved a champion hand through which this trade would flow.

Returning to the Motherland, Mr. Churchill discussed home problems.

"Many of her people were pressed to gain a livelihood, and although unable to closely follow political and external affairs, had the voting powers which they were beginning to use."

DO NOT BE MISLED THAT IT IS OUR POLICY TO EMPHASIZE THE WORK OF AFFAIRS," HE SAID.

"You often hear we are going to the dogs. This is a manner of correction, and of chasing a salutary progress. After all we are not doing so badly."

Mr. Churchill pictured a much-improved social condition in the home land. In comparison with Europe, the conditions in Great Britain were superior by every test which could be applied.

FINANCIAL CONTRIBUTION

Mr. Churchill declared the Equinax drydock, which he visited yesterday, to be a fine contribution to the strength of the royal navy. At Singapore the British Government was doing much the same thing.

It was a stepping stone for the protection of Australia and New Zealand. The Anzac helped the Empire during the war and some interest and protection were due them, he declared.

MR. CHURCHILL ALSO DISCUSSED THE PART OF THE DOMINIONS WITH THE MOTHERLAND, DECLARING THAT THE GOVERNMENTS OF EACH WOULD CONSULT THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT IN QUESTIONS OF EMPIRE IMPORTANCE.

In this connection he pointed out that the Dominions, as parts of the Empire, had much greater individual power than did the component states of the United States.

Dean Quainton was called upon by the chairman to express the thanks of the Canadian Club and the National Council of Education to the speaker.

MR. CHURCHILL, SON OF THE HONORABLE GUEST, REPLIED TO THE DEAN, AND DREW THE UNCONTROLLED APPLAUSE OF THE AUDIENCE AS HE WITTEDLY ANSWERED THREE UNUSUAL QUESTIONS ASKED BY THE DEAN OF HIS FATHER.

Earl Cromer, Lord Chamberlain, who was at the head table, was also called upon to speak, and in a few words expressed his thanks and appreciation for his enjoyable visit to the city.

DIGGERS UNABLE TO RESCUE FIVE TRAPPED IN MINE

They could hear the means of Mendes hours before they located him. He was crushed in a wedge-shaped cavity beneath two rocks, one of which was eight feet in diameter. It took all night to relieve his body of the tremendous weight pressing against it.

DELAYS WERE HEARTBREAKING AS MINERS TUNNELED UNDERNEATH HIM TO FREE HIS FEET. JUST AS THEY DID SO, MENDES COLLAPSED.

Part of another body was found by searchers within three feet of where Mendes was trapped. It is believed all the men were close together when the slide came.

Mine officials predict the four bodies will be found to-day.

The cause of the cave-in is unknown.

Deference to Throne Shown By Churchill

"After the King's Representative," He Said When Invited to Take Seat in Car

Former First Lord of Admiralty Impressed By Size of Esquimaux Drydock

Deference to the Throne was displayed in an unexpected and charming manner at the Belleville Street docks yesterday afternoon by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, former Chancellor of the Exchequer of Great Britain, following his arrival from the mainland.

Disembarking from the St. Princess Marguerite, Mr. Churchill and his party walked briskly to the Lieutenant-Governor's car. After pausing for a moment to face the news cameraman he was invited to take his seat in the automobile by the Hon. R. Randolph Bruce.

"After the King's representative," politely exclaimed Mr. Churchill as he took his seat beside the Governor and proceeded to Government House.

His Honor escorted his guests to the Parliament Buildings, where Hon. R. H. Pooley, Acting Premier, received them on behalf of the Provincial Government.

INTERESTED IN DRYDOCK
As First Lord of the Admiralty in the Asquith Government from 1911 to 1915, Mr. Churchill is keenly interested in naval matters and he expressed a desire to see the naval station at Esquimaux and also the Federal Government drydock at Skinner's Cove. Early in the afternoon Mr. Churchill, his son, Randolph, his brother, Major John Churchill, and the latter's son, John, accompanied by the Lieutenant-Governor, drove out to Esquimaux, where the former First Lord delved into its naval traditions.

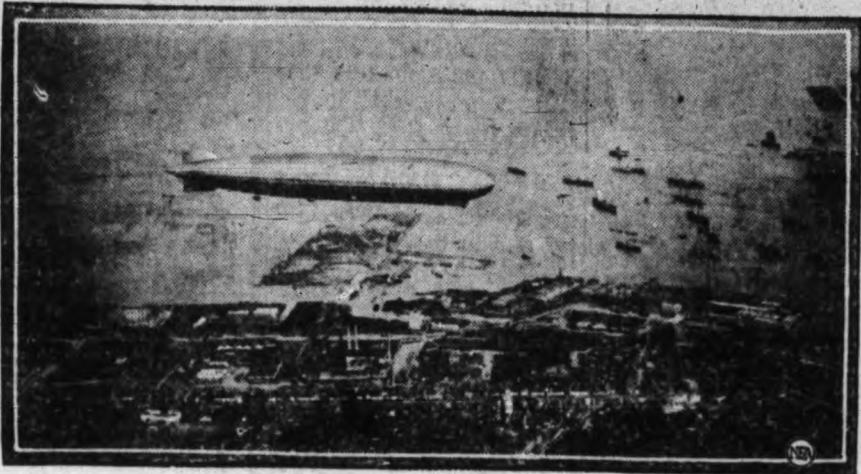

The party was met at the drydock by Capt. O. R. Parker, drydock superintendent, took the party on an exploration trip over the great graving basin.

IMPRESSED BY SIZE
Mr. Churchill expressed his surprise at the size of the dock and the extent of the facilities available for the handling of the largest vessels afloat. He went down to the floor of the dock, inspected the gates and explored the pump-house. The party arrived at the dock about 3:30 o'clock and left again at 4 o'clock for the city.

WORLD-CIRCLING ZEP BRINGS PHOTOS FOR THE TIMES OF WELCOME IN JAPAN

Half way around the world on its epochal flight, the silver-clad Graf Zeppelin here is pictured as it floated majestically over the city of Yokohama, Japan, on its way to the landing field at Kasumigaura. The globe-trotting sky giant had been in the air 100 hours on the second leg of her world cruise from Friedrichshafen, Germany. Busy Yokohama Harbor, leading Japanese port, is pictured strikingly in the background. This photo was brought to the United States aboard the Zeppelin.

the party was shown over the Provincial Archives by Archivist John Hogg, the former Chancellor of the Exchequer displaying interest in Capt. Cook's charts.

Last evening Mr. Churchill was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Lieutenant-Governor and Miss Mackenzie at Government House, the Earl and Countess of Craner, visitors to the city, also being honored guests.

WANTS ALL PUPILS IN SCHOOLS HERE TO BE SWIMMERS

New Manager of Crystal Garden Makes Proposals to School Board

Every pupil in the public schools of Victoria should be a good swimmer and the Crystal Garden is launching a drive to bring this condition about, it was announced to-day by Alfred H. Cowlishaw, new manager of the garden, who has arrived here from Winnipeg and assumed charge this week.

Mr. Cowlishaw has been a C.P.R. official since 1912, when he entered the company's service in Montreal, except during the war when he was overseas with the Princess Patricia's. During the last few years he has been with the hotel department in Winnipeg, which has supervision of the west.

"We are making proposals to the Victoria School Board to have the pupils of the Victoria schools receive instruction from our swimming instructors at the Crystal Garden," Mr. Cowlishaw said. "The proposal is that the pupils come down by classes on various mornings. The swimming instruction would provide the pupils with the best kind of physical drill and give them something that will be of definite value to them for the rest of their lives."

AMATEUR THEATRICAL PLANS
Mr. Cowlishaw said that plans for the operation of the Crystal Garden during the fall and winter seasons were now being worked out to give the Garden the fullest degree of operation. Besides the nightly dancing and swimming, a programme of amateur theatricals is being developed to feature the early part of the season.

"I have learned that Victoria is noted for its amateur talent and we want to give it a chance," Mr. Cowlishaw said.

The new manager has come to Victoria accompanied by his wife.

Nonchalante
He had joined a golf club and on his first hole made it in one. At the second tee came another miracle. Another awkward swing and he made the second in one. Turning around, white and trembling, he said:
"Gosh! I thought I'd missed it this time."

Grand Lodge Convention For San Francisco and District Rally Here

Preparations for a district convention to be held in Victoria, and the world convention of the Grand Lodge to be held at San Francisco, were announced by W. J. S. Laurie, of the Order of Eagles, at a meeting last night, with J. E. Marsh presiding. Delegates returning from the Grand Lodge convention will in many cases visit Victoria, by special arrangement with the Canadian National Railway, which is to run a special train from eastern points, taking in the Pacific northwest. The Canadian Pacific Railway will also run a special train from Winnipeg, so that numbers of the delegates may spend some time on the coast after the convention.

65 YEARS AS DENTIST

He has been pulling teeth and curing toothaches for sixty-five years—and still is at it in Bellaire, O. In 1864, when he was serving in the United States army, Dr. H. C. Kemple, eighty-five, above, was appointed "dentist" of his outfit. He liked it so well he studied dentistry when he was discharged and has been following the profession ever since.

YOUR CHILDREN

I have come to the conclusion that more parents are concerned with the matter of obedience than almost anything else in this serious business of child training.

So be it! Perhaps they are right, to consider it the one and only thing of importance in teaching a little child the way he should go, but let us hope that those parents who do worship at such a shrine and who are persistently blind to the other attributes necessary to bring the human race nearer to perfection, are sure that they themselves possess unflinching wisdom and are qualified to know unerringly the things that are right.

OBEDIENCE ISN'T ALL

Obedience is necessary—let me underline this—to fundamental laws; but it can't be considered by any manner of means the sum total of child training; not any more than discipline in school is the sum total of education. It is only the beginning.

However, as the question of obedience continues to be the most formidable bugbear in the woods of child behavior, we'll have to see about it. If you are having trouble with Johnny or Mary now, I hope that neither of them is much over three years old. Incidentally as this business of age rises up every once in a while to confront me, I have gone to the highest authority on character development that I could find—and behold! This was his answer:

"The habit of obedience should be firmly established at two years, or, at latest, three years. A child should begin to learn the meaning of 'no' at one year."

TRAINING OLDER CHILD
Pretty young, isn't it? If parents are still struggling with obedience in children seven or eight years of age, it is a pity, but, of course, it isn't hopeless. The best way to get around a child, then, is to make the disobedient one a friend, and gain his trust and confidence. He must develop a strong faith in the fairness of his parents. A child of this age is a well-developed human being and capable of reasoning and analyzing to an amazing degree. He is quick to sense injustice and keen to observe when his parents are asking obedience without reason. That is the best way—get the co-operation of the child. And after all, it is the highest type of obedience, isn't it? The obedience that understands is always the best.

But I should try to find time to worship at other shrines beside that of the complete submission of the children.

The years slip along so fast, and this matter of character education carries a lengthy curriculum. Better to develop character than suppress it. Obedience is only a small part of the whole.

HEADS RUSS ARMY

Command of the Russian armies along the menacing Manchurian border, where warfare with the Chinese is impending, has been given to General Vassili Blucher, above. He, a high ranking officer in the Czarist forces during the World War, also was "adviser" to the Chinese Nationalist army before relations between the two countries became severed.

Final Race Meet Opens Saturday At Colwood

Pick of Ponies Will Gallop Here For Seven Days

Cougar Handicap, Over Six Furlongs, Will Feature Opening Day; Four Races Will Cover Mile Route; "Quarter-horse" Neary Will Act As Official Starter; Big Crowd Expected; List of Horses Announced.

With practically all the ponies which have for the last week been showing their speed on Vancouver tracks in attendance, the last race meeting of the British Columbia 1929 season will get under way Saturday at Colwood.

Most of the horses have already been transferred to the local track, while a few have yet to come. The week's programme, including seven races daily, is expected to provide some of the finest competition of the present season.

The opening Saturday will have as its feature the Cougar Handicap, over the six furlong route, which will undoubtedly draw a number of the best ponies in the circuit. Catering to the desires of the public who like to watch the gee-gaws canter over the longer distances, the card includes four races taking in the full route, two being at a mile and seventy yards, one at a mile, and the other at one mile and one-sixteenth.

The three sprints for Saturday include two over six furlongs and one over five furlongs.

A distance event for Western Canadian bred horses will be another feature of the programme.

"Quarter-horse" Neary will be on hand in his starter role, with R. P. Leighton as the racing secretary and J. S. Rother the presiding judge.

Following are some of the horses which will be here for the meet:

Jack Hobbs Shows Fine Batting Form

London, Sept. 5.—Jack Hobbs, out of the game for a portion of the summer through an injury, is finishing the English cricket season in his best form. Yesterday, playing for Thornton's XI at Scarborough against South Africa, he hit 151. Most of his runs were made in partnership with Pat Hendren, who got 114. Thornton scored 368. THE HOME RUN PARADE

The American League section of the Big Six enjoyed an open day in the schedule yesterday and the feature of the afternoon was the duel between Babe Herman and Frank O'Doul for the leadership of the Big Six and the National League. Each got three hits in nine times at bat in the double-header at Philadelphia and each lost a fraction. They remained within a fraction of each other, with Rogers Hornsby still ahead. Rogers Hornsby got three out of the six in two games at St. Louis and gained a point.

Large Galleries Follow Play In U.S. Amateur

Six Home Runs Made When Cubs Split Twin Bill

Wilson, Hornsby, Stephenson, Frisch, Roettger and Bottomly Hit For Circuit as Double Clash With St. Louis Breaks Even; Brooklyn Robins Win Two To Strengthen Hold on Fifth Position; Race For Third Place in American League Remains Close; Athletics and Yankees Idle.

Even though the Chicago Cubs won only one of their games against the Cardinals at St. Louis yesterday, Joseph McCarthy advanced two notches nearer a mathematical stranglehold upon the National League championship. The Pittsburgh Pirates were considerate enough to permit the Cincinnati Reds to cavort off with a 5-4 decision in Cincinnati, leaving the Bruins in need of just fourteen victories to win, even if the Buccaneers should sweep the rest of their schedule.

The Philadelphia Athletics and the New York Yankees enjoyed a day of rest, precluding any change in the American League where the Macks need eleven triumphs in twenty-three games.

The Cubs missed a chance to score a double victory in St. Louis only through a six-run explosion personally engineered by Young Kenneth Penner in the eighth inning of the first game. Penner had followed Bush and Neft into the box and was in possession of an 8-3 tie when the Cardinals came to bat in the eighth to pound out a 14-8 decision. The Cubs won the nightcap by 8-3.

PLENTY HOME RUNS

Home runs were plentiful in the double clash between the new champions and the old. Hack Wilson hit his thirty-sixth, keeping pace with Ott, who, with Wilson, moved to within one of Klein, the leader, and Hornsby landed his thirty-third. Stephenson, Frisch, Roettger and Bottomly pounded out the four base circuits.

The immediate decisions of the Phillies against fifth place were frustrated by the Brooklyn Robins who made off at Baker Bowl by scores of 4-3 and 9-7, the second a ten-inning slugfest.

Dazy Vance outpointed Harry Smythe in the opener, giving the Ashesville southpaw his first defeat after three straight victories. Smythe also finished the second game after it already had been lost. Don Hurst for the Phils and Val Picinich for the Robins hit home runs. The double triumph gave the Robins a lead of two and one-half games over the Phils for the top place in the second division.

Larry Benton's pass to George Sisler with the bases full of Braves in the tenth gave the Bostonians an 8-7 decision over the Giants at the Polo Grounds after Melvin Ott's homer had tied the score in the ninth. Phil Voyles, a Pennsylvania semi-pro, made his major league debut with the Braves and hit a triple and a single. Judge Fuchs did not even know the recruit's name when the line-up was announced, but any one of several Giant pitchers could have informed him a few minutes later. Voyles' blow

Ray Kolp rushed to the aid of Eppa Rixey in the Pirate game at Cincinnati and got credit for the victory. Rixey had not pitched the requisite number of innings—which is five in the National League—to win the game. Meine went the route for the Pirates pitching fine ball after yielding five runs in the third.

RACE REMAINS CLOSE

The race for third place in the American League remained close, with Cleveland one and one-half games ahead of St. Louis. Wesley Ferrell pitched the Indians to a 7-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers, and Johnny Osteen brought the Browns home ahead of the Chicago White Sox by the same score. It was Ferrell's seventh victory.

The Boston Red Sox closed their series at home against Washington with a 3-1 victory.

SAANICH "A" RETAIN CUP

Defeat Plimley and Ritchie Softballers 15-13 in Final of Knockout Series

Scoring ten runs in the sixth inning to overcome a six-run lead, the Saanich "A" softball team retained the Fiddle Dog Cup, emblematic of the championship of the city knockout series, by defeating Plimley and Ritchie 15-13 at the Central Park last night in the final game.

In the sixth Plimleys went up in the air completely, and with the Thistles knocking the ball all over the lot, saw their apparently safe lead vanish into thin air. In the first inning both teams scored four runs, with Plimleys scoring two in the second to gain a one run lead. Saanich driving home one run in this frame. In the third Plimleys scored five runs, and it appeared like they had clinched the game until Saanich's big rally in the next inning. Plimleys scored two more runs in the sixth to end the scoring.

The short score follows:
Saanich "A" 4100100—15
Plimley and Ritchie 00000—13
Batteries: Fletcher and Moody; Turner and Stewart.

PERSPIRATION RUNS DOWN JONES'S FOREHEAD WHEN DEFEAT FACES HIM

the green into a shallow sand patch, after approaches and putts, Jones was stymied, two feet from the cup. He pitched over Goodman's ball right into the hole for a half.

Very fine work. Goodman laughed appreciatively. Shucks! That boy wasn't scared.

THE "BANK"

On the fourteenth came the play that broke Bobby's heart. Jones hit a screaming drive down the middle, a whale of a brassie to within easy pitch of the green. Goodman sliced his drive into the rough, pulled his second across into the fairway into more rough under a tree, rolled a low iron short of the green. It looked a cinch for Jones, but Bobby pitched eighty yards into the nearest trap. Goodman pitched right to the pin, and it wound up with Goodman par five after all that trouble, and Jones six. At the next hole Goodman, with his jaw muscles hunched like billiard balls, grimly determined to hold his recovered lead, outdrove Jones and held him to 4-4. Again 4-4 at the sixteenth.

It was getting very near the finish. Jones looked very much worried and tired. He was sweating so much the drops ran down over his forehead and were dripping from his eyebrows and it wasn't hot.

THE SEVENTEENTH

On the edge of a cliff over the sea, demands a high-topping shot of 218 yards to reach the green.

JONES SCOWLS

Goodman dropped his just eight feet from the pin. For the first time Bobby took a long minute studying his shot, and played with exceeding care. His ball dropped eighteen feet from the pin. Two great shots. Jones came up, scowling anxiously, studied, putted, hit the back of the cup squarely just a bit too hard.

The ball bounced out and stopped within a foot. Goodman, who had to be careful not to stymie himself on that slippery sloping green, patted the ball gently and it rolled aside just enough to miss the cup and he close to Jones. The hole was halved and Bobby drew a long breath. He has won more than a few championships on the last hole and extra strokes. A chance still.

Goodman drove a corking ball over the rocks and water, past guarding trees. Jones drove a sizzler, straight, and twenty yards farther. This was the time for the unknown to crack. But the Omaha boy socked his second nearly to the green. Jones tried desperately to drive the green, which no one has done yet, pressed, ailed, struck a tree in the woods at the right and into the good luck to bounce out neatly on the fairway.

Still a chance.

But his approach was short, just on the green, and Goodman's dropped six feet from the cup and stuck as if glued there.

All over now, unless Jones sunk a twenty-five-footer and Goodman missed.

Tense nerves, nerves that must have thrived protest as muscles held the putter steadily for that fast time.

Jones tapped, and the ball rolled gently up to the cup but a foot to the right. A perfect stymie, it Goodman lost this grip.

There, still a chance. But no such luck. The Omaha boy studied the putt a moment, then gently and deliberately.

Los Angeles, Sept. 5.—Los Angeles defeated a makeshift team, 9-4, in yesterday's series opener. Because most of the Indian regulars missed a train at Portland, Manager Johnson threw in a substitute line-up.

liberally putted two feet to the right of Bobby's ball, two feet from the cup and dropped his second putt for the half and the match.

That was one great golf game. And it's no wonder after that eighteen holes of tense strain, grim fighting uphill and all the way to recover from worse shots and greater difficulties, and with Goodman's little left but his nerve to stake the losing afternoon match against Little.

Jones and Homans will play off their tie for the medal honors later. That will give the galleries a chance to see Bobby Jones again. But the edge of the tense excitement is gone from Pebble Beach.

Furnaces, Stoves And Autos Can Cause Monoxide Poisoning

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

One of the most dangerous gases to the public today is carbon monoxide. It is the chief constituent of illuminating gas and also the dangerous constituent of automobile exhaust gas. Illuminating gas in the United States contains from six to thirty per cent of carbon monoxide. When gas is mixed with air before being burned, it shows a blue flame. Practically all of the gas that is not burned up produces carbon monoxide. If the blue flame is brought too close to a cooking utensil that is cold, carbon monoxide may escape combustion. This happens when a burner is lit improperly or snags back and burns at the base.

The gas from a blast furnace contains from 24 to 30 per cent of carbon monoxide. The smoke from a coal fire contains various amounts of carbon monoxide, depending on how free the draft may be. The more the combustion of the gas is interfered with, the higher is the percentage of carbon monoxide.

Thus the flue gas from boilers and household heaters sometimes causes poisoning through leaks in the heating apparatus. The gas from bathroom burners and from coke-burning heaters contains considerable quantities of carbon monoxide, and when these are used without a flue poisoning frequently results.

The exhaust gas from internal combustion engines contains carbon monoxide in amounts from one to seven per cent or even higher. An automobile may produce 28 quarts of carbon monoxide per minute per 20 horsepower. This is enough to cause the air in a single-car garage to become deadly within five minutes after the engine is running when the garage doors are closed. As has been explained in previous articles in this series, man breathing in air with this amount of carbon monoxide will fall unconscious before he knows that anything is wrong.

In most streets when the traffic is congested, the amount of carbon monoxide may be as much as 100 parts per million of air. This is enough to cause a slight headache after long exposure. When the carbon monoxide gets into the blood it combines with the red coloring matter and in this way excludes oxygen. It takes a long time to get the carbon monoxide out of the body. The way to treat a person who has been overcome with carbon monoxide is to hasten its elimination by letting him inhale oxygen with five per cent carbon dioxide.

If two workers are exposed for a long time to carbon monoxide gas and one is treated by inhalations of oxygen with five per cent of carbon dioxide, and the other merely by breathing spontaneously in the open air, the former will be able to go back to work within a half hour or so and feel as well as he did before he was passed, whereas the latter may be sick for a considerable period of time, sometimes for days or weeks. For this reason it is "customary" in plants where such asphyxiations may occur to have available inhalators and tanks of oxygen and carbon dioxide so that the treatment may be given promptly.

Sixty-one Were Killed By Typhoon

Manila, Sept. 3.—Reports from Bulacan and Laguna provinces to-day increased to sixty-one the number of known fatalities which directly and indirectly resulted from the typhoon which raked Luzon Island early this week.

Bulacan province, the first of the more northern territories to report, had twenty deaths. Eleven persons were drowned and twenty-two were injured at Nagcarlang, Laguna province, yesterday when a bridge, weakened by the storm, collapsed. Most of the victims were children who had lingered on the bridge to watch fishermen cast their nets.

There's Sport In Cooking Supper Out of Doors

By SISTER MARY

As a chill comes in the air after sunset, what is more fun than cooking supper outdoors?

A big roaring fire makes light and heat, if the dark catches one and food cooked in this same fire tastes much better than the same food cooked at home.

If possible, the fire should be built an hour or two before time to get supper, for a huge bed of coals is necessary to roast corn, apples or potatoes successfully.

The coffee should be made at home and taken in thermos bottles, for it's well nigh impossible for the amateur camper to make really good coffee over a camp fire.

HOW TO ROAST CORN
To roast corn, string the ears, unhusked, on a strong wire. Thread the wire through the heavy end of the ears. Pull this chain of corn into a circle, fastening the ends of the wire securely together. By this time the fire must be burned down to a great bed of coals. Open the coals and in the very centre bury the corn. Heap the coals back over it and let roast half an hour. The potatoes are buried around the edge in the hot ashes.

After the corn is buried, the heavier limbs that have not burned out are piled back over the fire and these keep the coals alive and furnish heat to roast the winners.

Long sticks of green wood are sharpened into smooth points for impromptu forks on which to roast the winners. The winners are slipped long fashion over the point and are held over the coals until the skin bursts. Turn frequently to roast evenly on all sides. Put between long buttered rolls to serve.

THEN—THE SECOND COURSE:
By the time the first course of winners and rolls is finished, the second course of corn and potatoes will be ready. Pull the potatoes from the ashes but the inside is delicious with plenty of butter, salt and pepper. Either sweet or Irish potatoes are good. Turn them over the coals. A long handled rake is perhaps out of the question, but long forked sticks can be found in the woods and answers the purpose. Rake the coals away and pull corn from fire. Remove from wire and serve in the husks with butter. Each ear of corn is put on a flexible paper plate which acts as a shield and prevents many a grease spot on coat or frock.

NEVER wait to see if a headache will "wear off." Why suffer when there's always Aspirin? The millions of men and women who use it in increasing quantities every year prove that it does relieve such pain. The medical profession pronounces it without effect on the heart, so use it as often as it can spare you any pain. Every drugist always has genuine Aspirin tablets for the prompt relief of a headache, colds, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. Familiarize yourself with the proven directions in every package.

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Ltd.)

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 5.—The wheat market was fairly active today and prices were mostly higher, being 1½¢ and 1½¢ above the previous close on the extreme bulge. There was a good case of buying going on by large interests and some buying that was credited to foreign account, but offerings were much more liberal and for the first time this season there was moderate hedging pressure in evidence. This made it difficult to hold the bulge, despite the fact the local crowd were very bullish and were adding to their lines, and in the late trade prices eased off, losing all the earlier gains.

There was also some fair selling, said to be for a New York house. There was a better tone to the cash market and spreads were unchanged to ¼¢ better, with offerings perhaps a little larger than they have been.

There was a small export business overnight and millers were showing a little more interest in the various grades. A London press cable stated that first arrivals of American hard winters were not proving satisfactory to the U.K. millers, due to the fact that considerable low grade crop wheat had been mixed with the better grades. Reports from the Argentine stated that the weather was again clear and that the rains had been fairly general in Saskatchewan; snow flurries at one or two points; temperatures cool. The same brand of weather is forecast for today and Friday.

The market is a two-sided affair and we suggest moderate profits on either side for the time being. Country marketings were 3,366,000 vs. 2,626,000 a year ago. The new crop is grading very high so far and is also strong in protein.

Coarse grains—These markets were steady at prices little changed from previous close, rye being firmer than oats and barley. Some low grade barley was worked, some export overnight.

Flax—There was very little doing and no feature to the trade.

WHITNEY LETTER

(By Branch, Brown & Co. Limited)

New York, Sept. 5.—Whitney of the Wall Street Financial Service, says today:

IRREGULARITY

"Another caution was sounded in yesterday's prices for the first time since the New York rediscunt rate was advanced, because it was felt that the steady advance recorded since that date called for at least a temporary halt in what has been very rapid progress. It was definitely stated that nothing worthy of the name 'break' was in prospect, but that a period of considerable general market irregularity and individual sharp reaction was about to be entered. I believe this period has been entered, and that there is need for greater discrimination, particularly in the purchase of issues at this time than it has been necessary to apply to commodities in the past six days. Three groups present minimum risk, viz., rails, oils and copper, the degree of risk being in the order in which they are set forth.

"During the period of irregularity with which we are faced, moderate reactions in issues which have been recommended in these groups should be used as buying points. The bull market is far from broken, but temporarily, at least, we have a time when caution will produce more profit than the over enthusiasm of the past two months.

"Stock exchange statement of brokers' loans is just about as indicated by the last four statements issued by the Federal Reserve, allowing for the normal variance. I expect another substantial increase in the loan statement to be issued by the Federal Reserve after the close. Bank of England rate to-day, don't know and don't care. Money market, after a day or two, headed lower.

COMMENT

"General advance in copper metal is imminent, and once started, I believe three additional advances will follow until the metal is established at 19 cents. The above interest in copper circles are now concentrating on Kennecott in preference to either Anaconda or Smelters, so for new buying, suggest like Kennecott, while Kennecott is some $11 below its high of the year in comparison with new records for the other two.

"I am just as confident that the prediction made here now that there will be no reduction in mid-continent crude oil, and no price war in the gas field will be fulfilled as I was of the prediction that copper would not decline below 10 three times as much as the reaction provided a last opportunity for 1929 to obtain at really cheap price such issues as Standard Oil of New Jersey and New York, Pan American and Royal Dutch.

"In the rail group, anything under 160 is cheap for Southern Pacific, the 190 and low comes cheap for Erie, and even present price cheap for Allegheny Corporation, elsewhere in this group wait a little.

"In the industrial I again direct attention to General Motors, which is going to be quickly established in the 60s, Gregory Brown in the steel field which is earning three times as much per share as steel, and selling for little more than half of its price. To White-rock, which is the underpriced issue in the food products group, look for an advance."

NICKEL OUTPUT
NOT FALLS SHORT OF WORLD DEMAND

Toronto, Sept. 5.—The output of International Nickel is falling so far short of meeting world demand, for a time at least, the management does not feel the necessity for pressing research work.

That was the statement made to-day by J. Conway Davis, a representative of Lord Melchett, chairman of the advisory committee of International Nickel. Mr. Davis is now in Canada conducting an investigation into the industrial and agricultural developments of Canada.

The statement was made in full view of the fact that the increased tonnage of higher grade from the ground is not far in the future and it seems to be an adequate offset to the claims of the nickel pessimists that International Nickel will not be able to dispose of its increased output in 1930 and the years to follow. International Nickel, while always interested in development of new uses for products, is not strenuously nor breathlessly regarding research work along these lines as demand already ahead of supply as far as this company is concerned Mr. Davis stated. It is the expectation that for some time to come the company will be taxed to capacity to supply the present developed demands.

Sales of metallic nickel in the United States in 1928 were approximately 90 tons in excess of similar sales during the previous year, while world sales of nickel apart from the United States, increased by approximately 50 per cent.

With the rapid development so far this year in all lines of industrial activity, there was no reason he added for assuming that a similar large increase in excess of similar sales during 1929. Mr. Davis referred to the last annual statement of the company, where an increase was shown in the sales of products from the Huntington plant of 35 per cent over the previous year, to show that International Nickel was sharing to a high degree in the increased demand. A factor to be not lost sight of is the fact that the vast amount of nickel scrap accumulated during the World War has now been consumed, in consequence of which steel makers are largely increasing their purchases of metallic nickel. One of the new uses developed for nickel is its incorporation in rails and structural steel as a hardener. The metal is being used by railways in the rails laid on the curves and other heavy wear sections.

Its further use in this direction was limited solely, Mr. Davis stated, by the law of economics as applied by railways. The same was true with regard to the use of nickel in structural steel works.

"Home?" Iris shrieked. "This is my home! Jack! She turned to her former husband, stretching out her beautiful hands. 'You won't send me away from my baby, will you?'"

The man did not answer, but Nan saw that his eyelids and mouth quivered and tightened with pain.

"Answer me, Jack!" Iris insisted, her voice rising hysterically, as she flung herself upon his breast. "Oh, Jack! I love you so! You can't send me away now! I've paid so dearly!"

As the man's arms lifted, slowly, Nan waited to see and hear no more. With a choked cry she ran from the room.

In the sanctuary of her own room she stood off a moment against the closed door, panting, dashing the tears from her eyes. Then, resolutely, she ran to her little escritoire, seated herself, pressed her fingers to her temples for a minute, then began to write furiously.

"Dear John," she wrote. "I'm going away. I suppose Iris will have to go, too, for a while, until I can give you your legal freedom. But Curtis is doing so well now that the nurses and the servants can take care of both of you. Forgive me if I am causing you inconvenience, but I know you will be glad that I have taken this step. Please don't think I blame you."

She was so absorbed in her letter, and her heart was pounding so furiously, that Nan did not hear the opening of the door leading into the bathroom between her and her husband's room. She heard nothing, had no intimation of her husband's presence until his voice, directly behind and above her head, crashed through her intense preoccupation with grief and remuneration:

"What are you doing, Nan?"

She dropped her pen, turned in her chair and raised tragic, startled brown eyes to his face. The fact that he was smiling faintly seemed to her the most terrible of all the dreadful things which had happened to her.

"Writing to you," she managed to answer. Then she seized her almost finished letter, thrust it into his hand.

He read it at a glance; then, to her amazement, his long fingers tore it deliberately across, doubled the fragments and tore them again. The bits fluttered into the wastebasket beside the little desk.

"We mustn't have that to remind us," he said huskily.

"But—but—" Nan stammered, slowly rising from her chair.

Her husband stretched out his arms, then dropped them slowly. "There is just one question, Nan, before I throw myself on your mercy: Do you want to be free—to marry Willis Todd?"

The question was so absurd, so unexpected, that Nan stared at him blankly before she could gather her wits to answer. "Willis Todd? Are you crazy, John? Or—are you just trying to save my pride?"

"Then—why were you going to leave me?"

Anger at the man's stupidity flared in her brown eyes and clenched her small fists. "If you will make me say it—I'm leaving you because I love you so terribly I want you to have anything you want—even Iris!" she cried furiously.

His arms reached out again, and this time they did not drop; they closed about her rigid, angry little body so fast that she gasped for breath.

"Darling, blind little Nan!" Morgan whispered huskily, his lips against her forehead, short brown hair. "Don't you know I don't want anyone but you?"

After an interlude in which words had no place, Nan lifted her tear-wet face from his breast. "I don't think I'm such a blind little fool as you say," she insisted tremulously. "That night—our night—I asked you how you would feel toward Iris if you ever saw her again, and you said you didn't know."

"It was trying to be truthful," he answered soberly. "I really didn't know. But I soon found out, darling. I felt sorry for her, a sort of pitying affection. No man can feel wholly indifferent to a woman who has been his wife for eight years. But I knew that I loved you more than ever. The contrast was—illuminating. But I was deeply shocked—for all of us—when Iris came back as she did, not knowing she was divorced. Then, when I wanted to talk it all out with you and your room."

"I thought you loved her," Nan told him. "I didn't want you to come to me out of sense of duty, with Iris in your heart."

"Poor Iris! I don't know what is to become of her, but she must not come between us again."

"Poor Iris!" a mocking voice cried from the door which Morgan had left open. "If you're really interested, Jack, read this! Read it and laugh at what a fool I almost made of myself! Read it!" she repeated, almost hysterical with triumphant joy.

Morgan's arms did not release Nan, so she was obliged to advance with him toward the woman in the doorway.

"It just came!" Iris's excited voice went on, as she extended an opened telegram toward her husband's unwilling hand. "The boy took it to my house across the street, and I wasn't there. Wasn't it lucky that one of the neighbors saw him and sent him over here with it? What a joke on me if it had come too late, too late! Read that, Jack, and don't worry about 'Poor Iris' again!"

Morgan held the telegram so that both he and Nan could read its message. It was a day later, filed in Los Angeles:

"Just received your letters forwarded to me here. Missed you, terribly. Ashamed of the way I treated you. Please forgive me. Delighted to hear of your divorce. Can you join me here immediately? Of course, we will be married. Stopping at Blinn's. Lining up new proposition. All my love, Bert."

Even then, Nan tried to spare her husband. When she realized that the telegram was from Bert Crawford, and that the ugly secret from which she had protected the man she loved must now come to light, she tried to cover up the signature, but John Curtis Morgan gently lifted her head, and held it against his heart as he finished reading.

"May I congratulate you, Iris?" he said, with curious gentleness, as he gave back the yellow sheet. "I hardly dared hope that Crawford would—"

As he hesitated, Iris finished his sentence for him. "Would do right by our Nell?" She laughed hysterically. "Then, 'Well, to tell you the truth, Jack, I didn't either, or I should never have tried to make you take me back! Well—thank heaven for that quixotic sense of honor of yours, Jack! You two ought to be very happy, you're both so damnably good! I've got to run now, and back! If I hurry, I'll just have time to make the eight-ten for Los Angeles."

When she had gone forever, leaving a ripple of excited laughter and invisible wreaths of perfume behind her, Nan turned puzzled, incredulous eyes upon her husband.

"You—knew about Bert Crawford and Iris?"

"Yes," he agreed, without explanation. "Otherwise I should have waited much longer to get a divorce. Judge Haskell knew, too, but he agreed to my keeping the charge of—infidelity out of the divorce petition. . . . But—let's try to forget it all now, and be happy. There's a very important subject to be considered—our beloved honeymoon. Would you very much mind, darling, if a certain little convalescent joined us?"

THE END.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily And Silly Sam

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By HOWARD E. GARIS)

The day after Uncle Wiggily had helped the Lady Mouse teacher of the Hollow Stump School by painting the white boards black for her, the old rabbit gentleman thought he would again go back to the place and see if everything was all right.

"For," said Mr. Longears to himself, giving his pink nose a little twinkle just to keep it from trying to turn upside down. "School opens next week, and all must be in order for the animal boys and girls to study their lessons. It isn't fair to leave everything to the Lady Mouse. She may need help."

As he hopped near to the Hollow Stump School, Uncle Wiggily thought it looked very neat and clean, for the janitor, Mr. Rat, had given it a bath during the vacation. Mr. Rat had also made the mistake of painting the blackboards white, as if told by the story last night. But with blackberry juice Uncle Wiggily had covered up the white and now the boards were as black as a piece of coal, which was as they should be.

"Here's a treat!" chuckled the Fox. And when Uncle Wiggily, looking over the bush, saw what the Fox had the rabbit whispered:

"Silly Sam! Ha! Ha! What a funny treat! Silly Sam!" Soon something very queer happened. And if the golf club doesn't knock the baseball through the bath-room window and get it all wet, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the chalk.

RED PIMPLES DISFIGURED FACE

Became Larger and Itched.
Healed by Cuticura.

"I had pimples on my face and neck. As time went on they became larger and itched. They were very red and scaled over. The pimples were so itchy that I scratched them and my face was disfigured. The irritation kept me from sleeping, and lasted several weeks."

"I tried all kinds of remedies but in vain. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased more and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and part of a box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Elias N. Hunka, Andrew, Alberta, July 12, '28.

SCHOOL DAYS

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I am always hearing the terms "real girl" and "regular fellow." What do they mean?

Answer: They are terms of approbation intended to express the opinion that the individuals thus designated are, in the literature of the wide open spaces, she-woman and he-man—if you get what I mean.

In other words, they represent the virtues of the sexes raised to the nth power. And in particular they are long on sincerity and short on pose. They are all wool and a yard wide and do not shrink in the wash. They are first-water diamonds. They are fourteen-karat gold with no pinchbeck about them.

A "real girl" is a girl who is young and gay and light-hearted and who is up on her tips all of the time. She enjoys all sorts of clean fun, but it has to be clean. No off-colored stories for her. No booze parties. No speakeasies and shady roadhouses. No coming home with the milkman in the morning. She doesn't drink, she doesn't swear. She doesn't curse. She doesn't buy her good times at a price that she will spend the balance of her life repenting.

The "real girl" is balm to the eyes and attractive to men, but she knows the trick of keeping just beyond their reach and keeping them following after her. She has no time for drugstore romances who consider that taking a girl to the movies or giving her a plate of ice cream entitles them to paw her over.

The "real girl" knows the value of clothes and is always prettily and becomingly dressed and immaculately groomed, but she is not one of those women whose brains are cut on the bias and filled in the middle, and who have no other earthly interest except dolling themselves up. She doesn't go to a hall dressed in half a fig leaf. Nor does she wear high heels and jewelry and misdirected finery to work.

The "real girl" is intelligent. She reads and studies and is interested in everything in this wonderful old world of ours, and can carry on an intelligent conversation on any subject. Her whole repertoire doesn't consist of "I said," and "she said," and "he said," and "they said," and giggles and "isn't that perfectly adorable" and "wouldn't that slay you" and "can you bear it?"

The "real girl" doesn't pose. She doesn't pretend to be something that she isn't, or lie about what her clothes cost and where she got them, or give you to understand that the reason she is working is because she is tired of society and wanted to pound a typewriter, or stand behind a counter as a change from going to parties. On the contrary, she is proud of knowing how to make her own clothes, and of having the ability to hold down a good job.

The "real girl" is womanly. She is sweet and sympathetic. She is kind and tender. She loves and respects her parents. She is considerate to old people. She has charming manners and is refined and gracious.

The "real girl" is competent. She can cook and sew. She can make her own living. She can play a good game of golf or bridge. She knows how to get a bargain and drive a car and has the skill and good judgment to make a success of anything to which she sets her hand.

To sum it up, the "real girl" is young, but she doesn't flap. She is independent, but not aggressive. She is feminine, but not whiny-washy. She is warm-hearted but she doesn't pet. She wants to marry, but she isn't going to marry until she finds a man who is worthy of her.

And the "regular fellow" is the masculine counterpart of the "real girl." He is a man who has brains and brawn and "IT," who can stand on his own feet and take care of himself in any emergency; who will stand by a friend and be faithful to a woman, and who treats every girl as he would like other men to treat his sisters.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I want the man I marry to love me for myself; my mind and soul, and not for my face. I want him to love me because my tastes agree with his, regardless of whether I am as beautiful as Diana, or as hideous as Medusa. I want to be a pal to my husband. I want him to treat me as a business associate and forget that I am a woman and he a man. Is this asking too much? I like young men so long as they talk to me about their business; but I hate them when they fall in love with my pretty face and get jealous and act like spoiled children if I go out with somebody else.

DISCOURAGED GIRL.

Answer: Don't get discouraged, my dear, and don't undervalue your pretty face. You need that to attract men to you, so that your mind and your heart will have a chance to get in their work. Otherwise they would never have a chance to find out what an intelligent and interesting person you are, or how similar your tastes are to theirs.

DOROTHY DIX.

John Dalton Wouldn't Give Up
Hard Problems

John Dalton was the son of a poor weaver in England. He would never have gone to school if it hadn't been for a kind, well-to-do Quaker, a friend of the family, who took an interest in the lad. He invited him to stay in his home, altogether with another boy twice his age, and the kind man, who was well educated, taught the two boys.

John was better at problems than the other boy. When he set out to solve something, he just wouldn't give up.

One evening the teacher gave the boys a very hard problem. After they had worked an hour, the older boy gave up. The teacher said, "Now, John, hast thou done that?"
"No," said John, "but I can do it."
He worked away for another hour, and at the end of that time the teacher asked the same question. "No," sighed John, "I can't do it to-night—but I can do it in the morning."
Sure enough, he rose early in the morning, and before breakfast he had solved the problem.
John Dalton, born September 6, 1766, was a great scientist and the real founder of modern chemistry.

To-morrow's Horoscope

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1929

Benefic aspects rule to-day, according to astrology. It is a time to push all big business interests.

Under this planetary government all who exercise authority or who carry heavy financial responsibilities are well directed. Great financial corporations will extend their scope, the seas prophesy, and novel co-operative projects will profit.

While this configuration prevails heads of government as well as heads of business should benefit immensely.

Co-ordination of corporate interests will proceed rapidly as the autumn advances, the seas forecast.

Railways are to benefit through amazing ly ambitious enterprises that bring together air and water projects not yet even planned, astrologers forecast.

The United States is to enjoy prosperity even greater than any that it has attained in previous years, according to astrologers, who predict super achievements.

This is a day pre-eminently favorable to advertising and publicity. Newspapers are to engage in wide-spread enterprises of novel character; it is foretold.

Real estate is subject to the most stimulating planetary influences making for great advances in prices for land in many districts, the seas prognosticate.

Under this direction of the stars women will do well to study carefully sound business principles and to prepare themselves for new financial responsibilities.

It has been predicted for many months that unexpected channels of public service would open for women and now is the time when they should prepare for big enterprises, the seas point out.

This is an auspicious day to seek the counsel of older persons, for the young are to carry on in a marvelous manner. Persons whose birthdate it is have a crowded, busy, but happy year before them. Children born on this day will make a success of life but will need wise guidance.

The appendix reaches its greatest length in the lungs, the Australian native bear, where it may be eight feet long.

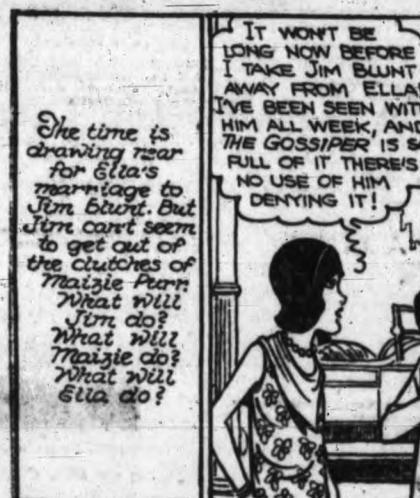

The modern steel railway rail is thirty feet long. Count the number of clicks the wheels of your coach makes in a minute. Multiply this by 180 and divide the result by 6380. This gives the speed of the train in miles per hour.

In the last ten years the cost to produce an acre of corn has been reduced from twenty man hours to 4 1/2 man hours.
